CAB Gives Sick Airlines A Financial Shot in Arm

Air Mail Subsidies Boosted $8 Million To Wipe Out Losses Sustained in 1948

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Civil Aeronautics Board took drastic action last night to put the Nation's airline industry back on its feet.

In a series of sweeping and far-reaching moves, the CAB:

1. Awarded nearly eight million dollars in additional mail pay subsidies to wipe out the industry's 1948 operating loss.
2. Ordered an investigation which could lead to the dismemberment of financially ailing Northeast and Western airlines.
3. Directed that another survey be made of some of the most heavily traveled air routes to determine whether there is too much competition. This could result in the elimination of some lines operating between Washington and Chicago, Washington and Detroit, Detroit and New York, and Washington and Minneapolis-St. Paul.
4. Laid down a new policy under which the Government will compensate carriers, through air-mail payments, for losses due to the grounding of new types of planes, such as the Constellations and DC-6's last year. Unless this is done, said the board, airlines will be loath to buy new aircraft models.
5. Announced an investigation of the "Big Four" — Eastern, American, United and TWA—to determine if it is operating inefficiency or factors beyond their control which result in some making money while others require Government financial aid.
6. Said it would institute studies to determine the actual cost to airlines of carrying the mail, with a view to determining how much is payment for service and how much is subsidy.

Sets Out Economic Policy

CAB Chairman Joseph J. O'Connell made public the series of orders late yesterday, with a detailed "Statement of Policy" on the board's 1949 economic program.

Reporting that only half of the 16 trunk-line air carriers made a profit in 1948, the CAB said:

"Our principal objective during the coming year is the complete return by the air transport industry to a sound and profitable condition."

Seven airlines were awarded mail pay increases totaling $7,808,000 by the board. For the year 1948, additional payments were allowed as follows: United, $2,902,000; TWA, $2,748,000; American, $233,000.

Other "show cause" orders were issued giving: Northwest, $1,134,000; National, $337,000; Northeast, $305,000; Challenger, $149,000.

The total is more than the total operating losses estimated by the Air Transport Association for domestic trunk lines in 1948. While a few carriers may still be in the red, the industry as a whole should be in the black.

To Study Class Rates

Other actions taken by the CAB include:

1. Announced plans to determine whether air freight rates should be placed on a class rather than a poundage basis. Railroads now use the class rates.
2. Ordered an investigation to determine whether further savings can be made through greater joint use of ground, traffic and sales facilities by airlines.
3. Said it will hold hearings soon on applications for transcontinental "coach" service, and similar service to Alaska and Puerto Rico.
4. Disclosed it has held conferences with the RFC looking toward loans to airlines.

GMC Cuts Auto Prices With Wages

Reductions Run $10 to $150; Pay Adjustment Tied To Cost of Living

Detroit, Feb. 25 (AP).—General Motors startled the auto industry today with a price cut tied mainly to a wage reduction for 273,000 production workers.

Prices were cut from $10 to $150, effective immediately. The wage reduction, commencing March 1 is 2 cents an hour. It is made automatically under a contract that adjusts wages quarterly to the Government's cost of living index.

Besides the hourly-rated workers some 68,000 GM salaried employes lose $10 of the $40 cost-of-living allowance they will receive during the next three months.

The payroll saving will be around 10 million dollars.

Temporarily the reduction means production workers will receive about 1 cent an hour less than the industry-wide average of around $1.65. They will receive a 3-cents-an-hour increase in their base rate on May 29, under their contract. This increase, described as an "improvement factor," does not fluctuate with the quarterly cost-of-living adjustments.

The next review of cost-of-living payments will be made in June, based on the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics index for April 15. The latest index showed that from December 15 to January 15, retail prices of goods and services purchased by moderate-income city families declined 0.3 per cent. It was the fourth consecutive month to show a decrease.

Chevrolet cut all models $10; Pontiac all models $15; Oldsmobile $15 and $20; Buick $16 to $30 and Cadillac $25 to $40.

Slashes announced later by GMC truck and coach division ranged from $100 to $150.

General Motors President C. E. Wilson said the cuts were designed to "pass along to consumers the savings resulting from both the downward adjustments of wage and salary payments and the lowered cost of certain material items."

In his reference to materials costs he differed with a statement by K. T. Keller, Chrysler president. In Chrysler's annual report, released only a few hours earlier, Keller said:

"Higher prices at this time are inevitable. No significant drop in labor costs or prices of materials is as yet even in prospect and much less in evidence."

Elsewhere in the industry top executives generally withheld comment. Their contracts, of course, do not provide for automatic wage reductions with declines in living costs.

Hits Speed of 5000 MPH

Rocket Goes 250 Miles High

White Sands, N. Mex., Feb. 25 (AP). A mother-daughter rocket combination soared 250 miles above the earth to a new world record yesterday.

Made up of a German V-2 which took off with the smaller American-built "Wac Corporal" rocket in its nose, the 15-ton projectile also reached a record top speed of 5000 miles per hour.

Actually, it was the "Wac Corporal" which posted both marks. It was launched in the sky from the V-2 and carried on from an unstated height. The "Wac Corporal" was fired by remote control.

(The "Wac Corporal" designation is a holdover from the missile's wartime code name.)

These achievements were announced today by Brig. Gen. Philip G. Blackmore, commanding officer at the White Sands proving ground.

Two-stage rocket experiments were begun nearly a year ago. Army ordnance specialists launched the missile without advance notice.

The 250-mile altitude eclipsed a previous mark of 114 miles attained in the firing of another rebuilt German V-2 here December 17, 1946.

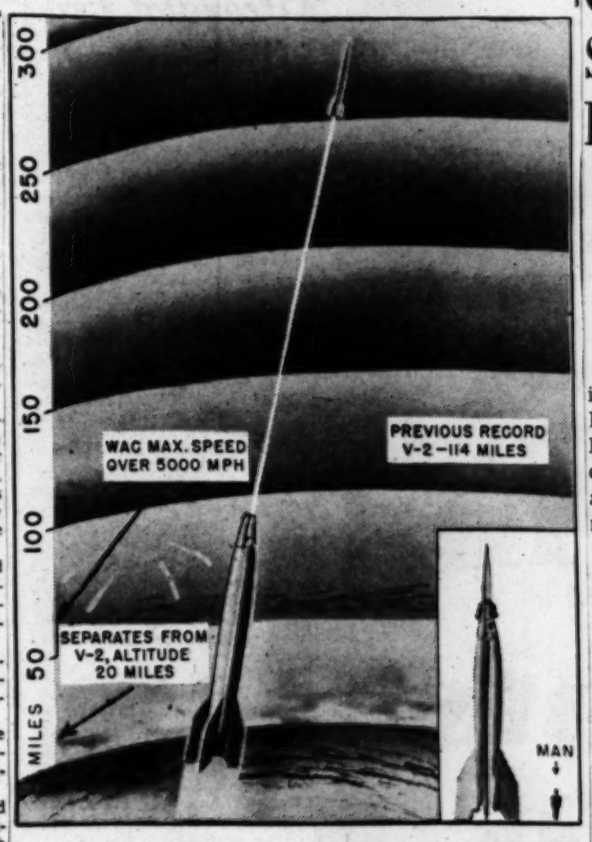
A statement by General Blackmore described this as the greatest height "ever reached by a man-made object," and added:

"At the peak of the flight the rocket was for all practical purposes outside the earth's atmosphere."

The new speed mark compared with 5300 feet a second—or slightly over 3600 miles an hour—which the 1946 V-2 reached in registering the former altitude mark.

White Sands authorities explained the Wac Corporal, normally weighing around 700 pounds, was substituted for what was the warhead of the V-2.

General Blackmore said the Wac portion of the double rocket descended 80 to 90 miles north of the White Sands launching platform, as tracked by instruments.



Army drawing shows how a revamped German V-2 rocket with an American-devised "Wac Corporal" in its nose was fired. The two-stage rocket, as the Army calls it, reached a height of 250 miles above the earth. Inset (right) shows comparative sizes of rocket and man

Ground searchers had not yet found it late in the day. The spent portion of the larger V-2 came down about 20 miles from the launching site.

The rockets are fired from a point about 30 miles inside the southern boundary of the proving ground, which extends 150 miles

ERP Needs Of Britain Scheduled For Review

Hearings Ordered Reopened Because Of Gap Between ECA And Mayhew Views

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Reopening of public hearings to reexamine Great Britain's needs in European Recovery Program funds was ordered yesterday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The unusual action follows mounting confusion touched off by what has been termed a misinterpreted speech made Wednesday before the United Nations Economic and Social Council by Christopher P. Mayhew, British Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) noted a "wide discrepancy in the ECA estimates of Britain's needs," and Mayhew's comments on British recovery in his speech at Lake Success, and moved to reopen the hearings.

To Clarify Situation

Committee Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said the committee agreed to reopen the public hearings, which had closed February 17, to clarify the situation, although he expressed the personal opinion that Mayhew's comments were actually "a political speech for the benefit of those British who are demanding the government continue its nationalization program."

Earlier, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), head of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, indicated he was taking Mayhew's statements with a grain of salt, although he called for a reexamination of the British position for clarification.

Senator Connally predicted that the committee will be able to hear sufficient testimony in one day from Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman and his associates to resolve the issue. He indicated no serious delay in congressional action on ERP funds.

Only Because of Marshall Plan

Mayhew declared originally that Britain has virtually completed her economic recovery and can turn to "new social and economic experiments." The next day, to meet a growing storm of unfavorable comment, he said he wished to make it clear that this economic position is only because of the Marshall Plan, and any permanent form of recovery would be impossible without continued ERP aid.

Secretary of State Acheson said yesterday that any slashing of ERP funds due to misinterpretation of Mayhew's "somewhat over-enthusiastic (original) statement" could "jeopardize the entire future of western Europe."

British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks said Mayhew simply wanted to indicate that Britain is moving toward a balance in imports and exports in foreign trade only because of the Marshall Plan, with Britain's actual dollar deficit in trade with dollar countries yet to be met.

The pending bill would authorize $5,580,000,000 in ERP funds for a 15-month period ending June 30, 1950, launching the second phase of the four-and-a-quarter-year plan.

$940,000,000 For Next Year

For next year, the bill would give Great Britain 940 million dollars to cover a 12-month-period, and Hoffman noted to reporters that this compares with $1,239,000,000 allotted to Great Britain for the first 12 months of the Marshall Plan.

This, he said, represents a 24 per cent cut over the first allotment in the present funds sought and "We would be glad if anyone can punch any holes in this request."

"As far as we know," said Hoffman, "it represents the absolute minimum, in the way of dollar allotment, necessary to provide the required imports of Great Britain if the present recovery momentum is to be maintained not only in Britain but in all of Europe."

Thomas K. Finletter, chief of ECA's mission to Great Britain, canceled a scheduled flight to London on Sunday to appear before the committee with Hoffman.

ECA personnel probably will call attention in their testimony to a statement in the ECA report

Pastors Admit Guilt Before Bulgaria Court

Implicate U. S. Attache, Women Educators at Opening of Spy Trial

By Edward M. Korry
United Press Staff Correspondent

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 25.—Two Protestant church leaders pleaded guilty in open court today, and blamed Americans for their plight, at the start of the trial of 15 Evangelical churchmen charged with espionage, treason and black marketing.

The Rev. Nikola Naumov, president of the Supreme Council of the United Evangelical Churches of Bulgaria, shouted and wept as he testified.

Mopping his tear-stained face with a handkerchief, Naumov denied that the state security militia had mistreated, beaten or "burned" him since his arrest in December and said:

"I advise all waverers to go the the state security people for re-education."

The Rev. Yanko Nikolov Ivanov, second defendant to go on the stand, was still confessing his guilt when court adjourned.

3 American Contacts Named

Naumov and Ivanov mentioned as their chief American contact Cyril Black, formerly in the American legation and now at Princeton University. They named also Melaney Turner, dean of the American Women's College, and Helen Cooper, her successor, as agents of Black.

Naumov, emphasizing the pressure of American influence in Bulgaria, included financial magnates like "Rockefeller," whom he named as a Baptist, and "Ford," a Methodist. He said he and his associates received large sums from the World Council of Churches.

It was unlike the trial in Budapest of Joseph Cardinal Minds-

Eastern Fruit Threatened by Warm Winter

Worst Crop Failure In Years Is Feared As Buds Burst Early

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Washington and the neighboring States of Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania may pay dearly next summer for the balmy, springlike winter they have enjoyed.

Orchardists in the great Appalachian apple area are fearful the weather, which has been running from 12 to 15 degrees warmer than normal, may result in one of the worst fruit crop failures in years.

The warmth has brought out the buds on the area's peach and apple trees from 20 to 35 days earlier than usual. In southern Virginia and in the Carolinas, peach and some apple trees, are reported in blossom.

A sharp freeze, not uncommon for this time of year, would hit the orchards with disaster.

In this regard the Western part of the country, which has suffered some of the coldest weather in years, may profit when the fruit harvest comes along in five or six months.

The situation received the full attention of apple and peach growers from the Atlantic Seaboard States at the National Peach Council at St. Louis, Mo., this week. D. M. Rubel, head of the deciduous fruits branch of the Production and Marketing Administration, and others reported that deep concern was expressed.

"Only the miracle of warm weather from now on can save this year's crop of peaches in this area," Rubel said.

The same fears were expressed

Rubens Nude Sold At Auction for $10 Gets $13,800 Later

London, Feb. 25 (AP).—Mrs. G. Beeton never approved of the painting her artist husband left her. It showed a nude woman stabbing herself.

So she shipped it off to a village auction one day and sold it for 50 shillings ($10).

The painting was described as "The Suicide of Dido," by the seventeenth century Flemish master, Peter Paul Rubens.

Told of the sale, Mrs. Beeton commented: "It wasn't a picture anyone would want about the house."

Finn Cabinet Shaky Over Norway Stand

Opposition Leaders Urge Coalition Rule, Including Reds

Helsinki, Finland, Feb. 25 (AP).—Finland faced the threat of a cabinet crisis today, with opposition leaders advocating the formation of a coalition government to include Communists.

The uneasy political situation here resulted from Norway's stand in favor of the proposed North Atlantic Alliance. According to opposition leaders, Norway's pro-western position has brought "mounting dangers" for Finland, a neighbor of the Soviet Union.

Premier Karl A. Fagerholm's Social Democratic (Socialist) government still is in office. It stayed alive Wednesday by a two-vote margin, but it appears to have little chance of continuing in power much longer.

An authoritative Finnish source has reported that additional Russian troops have moved to the Soviet border with Norway. The source added there has been no sign of similar Soviet movements to the Finnish border.

Is Bitterly Opposed

(There was no official confirmation in Oslo of the report. Official circles in the Norwegian capital regard such accounts as part of a war of nerves against Norway.)

Fagerholm's party has only 54 of the 200 seats in the Finnish Parliament. It is the only party which has not raised a demand for a coalition.

The Popular Democrats (mostly Communists) bitterly oppose Fagerholm as pro-western. They have 38 seats. The Agrarian party, Finland's largest with 56 seats, feels it is entitled to the premiership in a coalition.

This paradox now prevails here: Many anti-Communists are urging the immediate participation of the Communists in the government.

They fear that if the Communists are brought in at a later—and

French Seize Red Editor and Defense Data

Paris, Feb. 25 (AP).—The French Interior Ministry announced tonight that an editor of a Communist weekly has been arrested while carrying "documents involving the national defense."

Earlier a government source said authorities had begun legal action against the 84-member politbureau, or central committee, of the French Communist Party for allegedly trying to incite the army to revolt.

The reported legal crackdown was neither confirmed nor denied by the Defense Ministry.

The arrested editor was identified as Jacques Firedland of the publication Regards. The Interior Ministry said he was picked up while leaving Communist Party headquarters last night.

Seized documents dealing with defense matters will be turned over to the public prosecutor along with information about Firedland "and the persons who were aware of his activity or facilitated it," the ministry added.

Police raided the offices of three Communist publications, including Regards, and a publishing house.

The government source said the complaint against the Communist central committee was based on statements made in posters and in the Communist newspaper L'Humanite during the miners' strike last fall.

The Communists have repeatedly stated France would never fight Russia and the French people should welcome the Soviet army as liberators if Russia ever occupies France.

The National Assembly, lower house of Parliament, denounced Communist leaders for those statements. Premier Henri Queuille promised legal action.

The Justice Minister today asked for a lifting of the parlia-

Acheson Lauds Pact Progress In Negotiations

Meeting Next Week May Be Last; Treaty Text Expected Soon

Excellent progress in negotiation of the North Atlantic Security Pact was reported yesterday by Secretary of State Acheson.

Another meeting of representatives of the seven nations drafting the treaty will be held Monday or Tuesday, said Acheson, with the hope that the final text will be ready next week.

Acheson met for 3 hours and 15 minutes yesterday with negotiators for Britain, Canada, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, and later said at his weekly press conference that they went over each article in the proposed pact to make drafting revisions that he suggested.

May Be Final Session

The meeting early next week may be the final one required to complete the treaty draft. When the negotiations end, the foreign representatives will submit the proposal to their capitals, and soon thereafter it is expected to be released here.

After the morning session with Acheson, French Ambassador Henri Bonnet told reporters: "We have had another meeting—a very interesting one—and I think we have made some progress."

British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks and Canadian Ambassador Hume Wrong also reported progress, and indicated satisfaction with the negotiations.

Acheson declined to indicate how much of the negotiators' time was spent on the key article in the pact, dealing with the kind of aid a country will receive from the cosigners in event of attack.

The treaty draft provides that

Currency Value Upset Feared

World Fund and South Africa Clash on 'Premium' Gold Sales

By The Associated Press

The World Monetary Fund last night sharply criticized Union of South Africa arrangements to sell gold at a price some $6.50 above the Fund's official rate of $35 an ounce.

The 47-nation institution also declared it "strongly objects" to a statement by South Africa's finance minister, Nicholas Havenga, that the $35 rate is too low.

Furthermore, the Fund said, it is "not satisfied that adequate safeguards would exist" in South Africa's sales to prevent the gold from being hoarded for money purposes. Havenga has insisted the safeguards are adequate.

This put the Fund at odds with the world's biggest gold producing nation over an issue on which Havenga had declared the "success or failure" of the Fund depends.

The Fund's concern centered on the fact that the exchange value it sets for currencies of its 47 members are tied to the $35 rate, which is the United States official rate. Any change in that rate would upset exchange values of currencies, the Fund fears.

The Fund's statement constituted its reply to comment by Havenga as he rejected a Fund request that South Africa postpone its program for selling gold at premium prices to a London brokerage firm.

The contract calls for South Africa to sell 100,000 ounces of gold alloy at a price equivalent to about $41.50 an ounce for fine (24 carat) gold, the kind covered by the Fund's $35 rate.

Havenga said South Africa would take strict measures to assure that the gold it sells will be used only to manufacture articles and not for monetary purposes.

The Fund, concerned only with monetary use of gold, does not seek to control sales of the metal for "bona fide and customary artistic, industrial or professional purposes" so long as "adequate safeguards" exist to prevent its use for "speculation and hoarding."

The Fund virtually served notice that it will not sanction entrance by South Africa into further contracts for premium priced gold sales in the future.

Truman-Barkley Club to Back Morgan Even Against Young

The Truman-Barkley Club of Washington will back Thomas P. Morgan, jr., retired insurance executive, for District Commissioner whether or not Commissioner John Russell Young is a candidate for reappointment.

Morgan

This was revealed last night by Arthur Clarendon Smith, chairman of the club, and it refuted earlier published reports that the club's backing of Morgan was contingent on Young's refusal to seek office again.

Commissioner Young first was appointed to his present post by President Roosevelt in 1940. He has served two three-year terms and his third term will expire April 17.

Young had no comment to make last night on the report and Morgan was not available for comment.

If Morgan wins the appointment he will be following in the footsteps of his grandfather, who was appointed a District Commissioner by President Hayes.

Morgan, a member of the District Boxing Commission, was formerly associated with the Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Washington. He has long been a civic leader and in 1939 was general chairman of the National Symphony Orchestra fund drive. The same year he was chairman of the advance gifts committee for the Community Chest.

A lifelong Democrat, he was active in behalf of President Truman during the last campaign. He lives at 2711 34th pl. nw.

Galvin, Nominated for Undersecretary Of Labor, Served Under General Patton

Michael J. Galvin of Massachusetts was nominated yesterday to be Undersecretary of Labor. President Truman advised the Senate of his choice for the post and asked its approval.

Galvin is a 41-year-old Boston lawyer with a distinguished war record. He had 280 days of front-line service as a lieutenant colonel of tanks under Gen. George S. Patton, jr., in 1944 and 1945.

Galvin was recommended by Secretary of Labor Tobin, also a resident of Massachusetts.

The new Undersecretary nominee was born September 7, 1907, in Charlestown, Mass., and is now a member of the law firm of Herrick, Smith, Donald Farley and Ketchum.

The post of Undersecretary of Labor has been vacant since David A. Morse resigned last June to become director of the International Labor Organization. It pays $10,000 a year.

There is also one vacancy among the three assistant secretaryships.

A White House announcement, detailing Galvin's war record, said he participated in all major battles of Patton's Third Army in France and Germany and was wounded in combat in 1944.

Galvin served for 19 months as operations chief of Patton's Sixth Armored Division comprising approximately 12,000 officers and men. He had staff responsibility in combat of drafting all divisions' combat plans.

Galvin has five battle stars—Bastogne, Normandy, Rhineland, Germany and Northern France.

He holds the Croix de Guerre with Gold Star, the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Bronze Star Cluster, the European Theater, American Theater, American Defense, German Occupation and Victory medals.

Galvin resides with his family at 33 Wenham st., Boston. His children are Patricia, 11, Noreen, 9, Priscilla, 7, Michael, 6 and Gael, 1.

Prenatal Test Of Fluorine Under Study

Dr. Basil G. Bibby, pioneer of fluorine in dentistry, revealed here last night that flourine treatments in both prenatal care and baby-bottle formulas are now under way.

Dental researchers, he declared, are gathering evidence to support their belief that fluorine may best strengthen teeth against decay in the formative years, before tooth eruption through the gums.

Director of the Eastman Dental Dispensary in Rochester, N. Y., Dr. Bibby spoke as guest lecturer at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., the sixth in the center's monthly series of talks by outstanding authorities.

The prenatal and postnatal studies, he said, are under way in many section of the country, particularly through surveys in towns where fluorine has been found, or added to, the community water supply.

In his own laboratories, Dr. Bibby said, researchers are studying food preparations to determine which foods hasten tooth decay processes. There is "considerable evidence," he declared, that many table preparations "only slightly different from others" are likely to speed decay processes in the teeth.

Some preparations just stick to the teeth longer than others, he said, hinting that one object of the research may be to find cookies and other snacks less conducive to damage to the teeth.

India Moves To Outlaw Vital Strikes

New Delhi, India, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—India took emergency steps to meet the Communist threat in this country today by introducing a bill in Parliament to outlaw strikes in the essential services under penalty of jail or fines.

The government also proposed a conference of neighboring commonwealth countries to consider the serious situation in Burma where Karen tribesmen have revolted against the government.

An official statement accompanying the antistrike bill said the government had gone the limit to meet genuine demands of labor.

"But there are certain elements which seem determined to foment strikes among essential services with the object of disrupting the country's economy and causing confusion and chaos," the statement said.

Phone Union Plans Round 4 Wage Drive

Chicago, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—The Communication Workers of America will ask a fourth round of wage increases for its 200,000 independent union members, says Joseph A. Beirne.

The amount of the demands to be made on the Nation's telephone industry, Beirne said, will be determined at the CWA's national convention in Chicago June 12.

Meanwhile, the CIO United Packinghouse Workers Union announced today it will seek this year a general wage increase and improved health and welfare benefits.

Last year this union of 100,000 members struck against the Nation's leading meat packers on March 16 for a wage increase of 29 cents an hour. Then men went back to work on May 21 at most of the plants for a hike of 9 cents an hour, the amount offered before the strike.

One third of the workers, the union said, are paid the common labor rate of $1.15 an hour for men and $1.05 for women, a standard that is slightly lower in the South. The top pay for a packinghouse hand is about $1.75.

The union contract guarantees 36 hours of work a week. Because of reduced slaughter, the union said, work recently has been running less than 40 hours a week.

The Hanford works manufactures plutonium for atomic weapons.

"It is a natural reduction which results from good progress made in building new plants and improving those built during wartime," said Fred C. Schlemmer, manager of the Hanford operations office.

Police said Fields was paroled recently from a Federal hospital for narcotic addicts in Kentucky.

Middle Course On Labor Law To Be Offered

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Two Republican "Young Turks" moved to combine forces in writing a "middle course" labor law yesterday, as the Administration drive for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act was slowed up by technical difficulties.

Senator Wayne Morse (Oreg.) and Senator Irving Ives (N. Y.) have conferred on their individual management-labor relations measures, and have found no basic differences of opinion between them, it was learned.

Morse and Ives are expected to propose a law removing or watering down many provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, but one which also will go beyond the Administration proposal to restore the Wagner Act with "improvements."

The two "Young Turks," it is understood, are opposed to the Taft-Hartley Act's method of dealing with national emergency strikes. The act provides for an 80-day court injunction against such walkouts. Morse and Ives, it is believed, favor a voluntary cooling-off period, based on presidential proclamation, similar to the Administration's plan, but with a 60-day cooling-off period instead of 30 days as called for in the Administration's Thomas bill.

On the question of the closed shop—banned by the Taft-Hartley Act and restored by the Thomas bill—the two Republican Senators are believed to be thinking about bringing back the closed shop with some sort of safeguards for workers who don't wish to join the union.

The secondary boycott is outlawed by the Taft-Hartley Act. The Thomas bill prohibits certain types of boycotts, virtually limited to those arising from jurisdictional disputes. Both Morse and Ives are believed to feel that not all secondary boycotts ought to be banned, but that the Thomas bill does not go far enough.

Both Senators, it was learned, are still uncertain how they want to deal with unfair labor practices quick enforcement on the basis of probable cause for such action, or slower enforcement on the basis of complete investigation of such charges.

Senators Morse and Ives teamed up in 1947 to put over the labor bill adopted by the Senate Labor Committee, 11-2. Their bill was loaded with amendments in the Senate, and further drastically changed by additional clauses insisted upon by the House.

In the ensuing battle over the legislation—now known as the Taft-Hartley Act—Morse voted to sustain the President's veto and Ives voted to override it.

On the Senate floor yesterday, Morse insisted neither the supporters of the Taft-Hartley Act nor of the Thomas bill could get a majority vote of the Senate. He predicted his "middle course" bill would be passed as a result of such a stalemate.

Some observers on Capitol Hill believe Morse is correct in his appraisal of the situation. They feel the regular Republicans and Southern Democrats may rally around the Morse-Ives bill in a move to stop the Thomas bill. Also, the Morse-Ives bill could conceivably force the Administration to make some changes in that direction in their own measure.

Thus far, at least, the Administration has failed to display strong leadership and direction on Capitol Hill in repealing the Taft-Hartley Act and replacing it with its own legislation.

Hearings on the bill, scheduled originally to end February 10, were extended to February 23, despite requests by the White House and organized labor for speed. And yesterday, Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, announced that executive committee hearings would not be held until next Friday in order to give the staff time to print the complete record of the hearings.

President Truman called for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act in rather strong terms at the Jefferson-Jackson day dinner Thursday night, but he conspicuously failed to urge passage of the Thomas bill. Instead he asked for a labor law that is "fair and decent."

There appears to be little doubt on all sides that the Thomas bill will undergo alteration before getting through the Senate. Its advocates still insist, when the showdown vote comes, the Thomas bill will sail through with few minor changes, if any. Other Administration Senators are not so optimistic, and several have taken steps to seek information about the Morse-Ives proposal—just in case.

Senate Committee Approves Bill for Science Foundation

A new bipartisan measure creating a National Science Foundation to keep this Government a reast of modern scientific developments was approved yesterday by the Senate Committee on Education and Labor.

C' 'rman Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), who termed the bill "an epoch-making advance," said it now avoided all the difficulties which caused President Truman to ve'o a somewhat similar measure August 6, 1947.

The new measure has been worked out with the cooperation of the White House and the Budget Bureau, Thomas disclosed, and has received approval from all the interested agencies.

President Truman termed the measure passed two years ago by the Eightieth Congress "administratively unsound."

The bil would:

1. Create a National Science Foundation consisting of 24 members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

2. After consultation with the 24 members, the President is authorized to appoint a director, whose nomination is also subject to Senate ratification. His salary is set at $15,000 a year.

3. The foundation as originally created would have a division of medical research; a division of mathematical, physical and engineering science; a division of biological science; a division of scientific personnel and education, and such other divisions as the foundation may establish.

4. The foundation would be authorized to award scholarships and graduate fellowships for scientific education.

The measure carries no appropriation. Thomas, principal author of the bill, said the budget requests would come after the members of the foundation were named.

Ban on 'Voluntary' Rent Boosts Looms

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Tentative agreement to back a new rent-control law banning the present so-called "voluntary" 15 per cent rent increases was reached yesterday at a closed meeting of House Banking Committee Democrats.

The Democrats met to work out a united party stand on rent control before the full committee starts writing up the bill next Monday in executive session.

As was predicted earlier the Democrats agreed to back a 15-month extension instead of the 24 months sought by President Truman.

They decided upon additional enforcement teeth but did not give the Administration the criminal enforcement powers it had requested.

Woods Reported Satisfied

Tighe E. Woods, housing expediter and rent control administrator, was present at the session and was reportedly satisfied with the Democratic majority's decisions.

Representative Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), ranking committee Republican, has already served notice the GOP will seek a 90-day "as is" continuation of rent controls, so that Congress can have a better look at present economic trends. The GOP stand cannot prevail in the committee, however, in face of the apparently solid Democratic front.

Major provisions on which the Democrats appear fairly well agreed are:

1. A provision authorizing the rent control administrator to sue landlords for triple damages if they overcharge their tenants. Under the present law, only the tenant himself may initiate such a suit—and few do.

Strong Eviction Curbs

2. Inclusion of strong curbs on eviction of tenants, as requested by the Administration.

3. Refusal of an Administration request for criminal penalties to be imposed on landlords who repeatedly and wilfully violate rent ceilings.

Under the tentative agreement, the Democrats would back a bill permitting existing 15 per cent so-called "voluntary" rent increases to stay in effect but banning any such being made in the future.

Some Democrats also said that Woods may receive authority to recontrol areas now subject to decontrol. Woods has pointed out that it would be easier to decontrol some areas if he knew he could recontrol them if rents again got out of line.

No Retroactive Damages

Authority to bring treble damage suits would not be retroactive. The administrator could bring suits only for violations occurring after the new law becomes effective.

The House Banking Committee's Democratic majority was threshing out the rent control problem when the Banking Committee on the other side of the Capitol introduced a broad slum-clearance and low-cost public housing bill.

Both opponents and proponents said there is no question that the Senate will approve the new bipartisan housing measure, but action is blocked behind the angry battle to change the Senate rules to curb filibusters.

As soon as the bill was introduced, Senator John W. Bricker (R., Ohio), who voted against it in committee, assailed it on the floor.

Maybank Draws a Laugh

Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) of the Banking Committee drew a laugh from Senators and gallery alike when he jumped up to take issue with Bricker.

In his excitement, Maybank said:

"Our interest in the committee was to get politics above housing—I mean to get politics out of housing."

Bricker said he would press for action on his amendment to bar segregation in any public housing unit.

In Mahoney Case

Police Seek Watch as Slaying Clew

New Orleans, Feb. 25 (AP).—A missing yellow gold watch belonging to James A. Mahoney, murdered Virginia millionaire, gave police today a clew in the mystery slaying—if they can find it.

Police broadcast a description of the watch, missing from the Monteleone Hotel room where the 5[illegible]-year-old visitor's nude body with a broken neck was found Tuesday morning.

A 26-year-old carpenter from Richmond, Va., who boasted in a French Quarter bar of knowing Mahoney several years ago, is being detained overnight for questioning. He denied all knowledge of the case.

House Group Alters Plan For DST Here

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A House District Subcommittee yesterday approved Washington daylight saving time for this summer.

The subcommittee, headed by Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) disagreed with the Senate-approved bill which would give the District Commissioners permanent authority to order daylight saving time into effect each summer.

In this way, the Harris group followed the precedent set by the House for the past two years in insisting that 'fast time" be approved only oon a year-to-year basis.

Subcommittee action followed a three-hour public hearing in which daylight saving time came in for approval and protest from witnesses.

Through the hearing, Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn), a member of the subcommittee, made clear that he opposes daylight saving time, and that he will vote against it at every step. But he insisted the issue should be presented to the House for its decision rather than being delayed in committee.

In favor of daylight saving time at the hearing were President John Russell Young of the District Board of Commissioners; Earl Gammons, vice president, Columbia Broadcasting Co.; Col. William H. Press and Raymond DuFour, Board of Trade; Ben Paul Noble, Public Vehicle Owners and Managers Association, and Mrs. Harriett French, Federal Recreation Committee.

Opposing the bill were A. Julian Brylawski, vice president, Theater Owners of America; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, District Federation of Women's Clubs; William A. Hunt, Bureau of Engraving and Printing employe; C. E. Simmons, 1770 Massachusetts ave. nw.; W. H. Louder, Lincoln Park Citizens Association, and H Herbert Howe, 1313 North Wayne st., Arlington, Va., Coast and Geodetic Survey employe.

Barber Fined $1000 in Tax Evasion Case

A local barber was fined $1000 yesterday for income tax evasion.

He is Alphonso Peluso of 3805 Garfield st. nw. Sentencing was by Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut in District Court.

According to the indictment which was returned in Baltimore with jurisdiction there waived, between 1942 and 1945 Peluso underestimated his income so that he noted on his returns $3700 less than was actually due.

In another case, Sam Kaufman of 40 Crittenden st. ne., was fined $750 for operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Dock Maddox, 52, of 611 Q st. nw., received three to nine years in prison for taking indecent liberties with an 8-year-old girl.

The armed holdup of the Alma Liquors, 527 3d st. sw., netted a one to six year prison term to Donald F. Wilson, 20, 527 3d st. nw. He was charged with two counts of robbery involving $148 and one count of carrying a deadly weapon illegally.

Arthur McClary, 22, of 1412 V st. nw., received two to six years in prison for the $4.50 robbery of a cab driver who was slugged over the head with a brick.

Edward M. Shane, 28, 1424 Belmont st. nw., and Ernest C. Livesey, 22, of 2722 22d st. ne., each received two to eight years in prison for snatching a money bag containing $231 last May from Miss Marion L. Lambert, credit clerk for Montgomery Ward, 706 13th st. nw., while she was on her way from a bank.

Montgomery ExtendsCounty Office Hours

Montgomery County government offices will be open from 8:15 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday, beginning next Tuesday, instead of from 9 to 4:30, it was announced yesterday.

Changing the work week of county employes from 32½ to 40 hours was found necessary, according to Acting County Manager I. G. McNayr because there is a heavier work load.

The increased work resulted, he said, from a "falling behind" because of the 32½-hour work week, new responsibilities constantly being added and current reorganization of the county government under the new charter.

Saturday morning work will not be required, McNayr said in an administrative order.

Truman Talk Kicks Off Field Day at Capitol

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman's veiled threat to go back to the whistle stops to get his program through Congress kicked off a political field day at the Capitol yesterday.

Senate Republicans taunted Democratic leaders on the record of the Eighty-first Congress. Not "special interests," but Democrats, were holding up the President's program, they said.

Democrats went to bat for their 60-day legislative record and spoke up for Mr. Truman, too. But it was a Republican who put Mr. Truman's Jackson-Jefferson Day speech in the Congressional Record.

Then Senate Republican leaders sat down at a luncheon conference with GOP National Chairman Hugh Scott to patch up some party differences of their own. Scott claimed there was "100 per cent harmony."

Maine's Owen Brewster, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, led off the Senate horseplay with a speech calling the $100-a-plate Democratic dinner a "feast of Belshazzar."

After reading the menu in detail, he discussed Mr. Truman's projected tour. He said the President was "irritated" at Eighty-first Congress delays.

"Whether it is going to run a close race with the Eighieth Congress on the record it will write is a matter on which the President apparently has some doubt," said Brewster. "Apparently he did not consider it a victory dinner."

Next Ohio's John Bricker (R) said Mr. Truman was "building up straw men to knock down because members of his own party are not in harmony with his program." He charged the President was motivated by "frustration."

Senate Democratic Leader Scott Lucas (Ill.) finally retorted that the President had drawn blood in his speech.

Said Lucas:

"The mere fact that you Republicans have talked all afternoon about what Harry Truman said shows his speech was effective—that it hurts."

Lucas said Republicans are split wide open and still "smarting" from their election defeat. The new Democratic Congress, he said, can better the record of the Republican Eightieth "if we don't do a thing but sit here."

Finally, a bipartisan note was struck by Connecticut's Brien McMahon (D.). McMahon said both parties ought to drop partisanship to pass housing, aid to education, health and other legislation the country needs. He proposed holding Congress in session beyond July 31 to fulfill platform pledges.

Senate Republicans, meanwhile, talked over plans for "coordination" of the GOP campaign with Republican National Chairman Scott at a luncheon arranged by Senator Brewster.

Members of the Senate Republican Campaign and Policy Committees sat in. Scott offered to raise congressional representation on the party policy committee created at the National Committee's stormy Omaha conference.

No action was taken on Scott's proposal for a GOP policy-drafting conference next fall, but there was some talk of "regional" or so-called "topical" conferences instead.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said he doesn't "greatly object to a policy conference if they want it, but I'm not strong for the idea."

"I don't see what purpose it can serve," he said. "We already have a good 1948 platform and we'll have our record in Congress."

Chiropractor Bill Stirs Fight In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—Scores of Maryland doctors today called for defeat of legislation which they said would "put chiropractors right into the practice of medicine."

The group appeared at a House public health and welfare committee hearing on a bill sponsored by the State Chiropractic Association.

Dr. Huntington Williams, Baltimore health commissioner, said Maryland laws give chiropractors too much freedom already.

"They are bringing these gentlemen to Maryland" from New York State because chiropractors are not allowed to call themselves doctors in New York, Williams said.

Dr. Wayne F. Crider of the Chiropractic Association denied the bill would broaden the present law.

"We are not asking for a thing we never had," he said.

Dr. Williams said chiropractors sought "to fool the public into thinking they are doctors of medicine."

He charged them with "allowing patients to die without medical care."

Williams said a 16-year-old Baltimore boy died in 1944 while under treatment by a chiropractor for a cold and a stiff neck. He said a 37-year-old woman died in 1945 the day after a chiropractor pronounced her in good health.

Dr. Justin C. Wood of Salisbury, a member of the board of directors of the National Chiropractic Association, said doctors make mistakes, too.

The Gallup Poll

Only 49 Per Cent Are Certain They'd Take Same Mate Again

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 25.—Suppose you had your life to live over again. Would you marry the same person?

That question was put to husbands and wives in a Nation-wide survey by the Institute.

Slightly fewer than half—49 per cent—of those questioned said they were certain they would want to marry the same person if they had it to do over again.

The question was put in the following form to a cross-section of married people in all States:

"Knowing what you do now, if you had it to do over, is there a chance you might not marry the same person, do you think you probably would, or are you certain you would?"

Certainly would	49%
Probably not	28
Might not	10
Don't know	13

It will be noted that the most doubtful group, those who say "might not" and "don't know", total 23 per cent or nearly one fourth. It may be just a coincidence, but there has been one divorce for every four marriages in the United States during recent years.

One interesting sidelight in today's survey is that fewer wives than husbands said they were certain they would pick the same mate.

The results by men and women follow:

	Married Men	Married Women
Certainly would	52%	47%
Probably would	27	29
Might not	8	11
Don't know	13	18

Legislature Asked to Ban 'Gag' Ruling

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—The Maryland Legislature was asked today to outlaw court rules cramping "the liberty and freedom of the press."

Senator Stromberg (D., Howard), publisher of several weekly newspapers, introduced a bill to forbid judges from the Court of Appeals on down to "abridge in any manner" constitutional guarantees of press freedom.

Any such rules now in effect would be nullified on June 1.

Stromberg's bill resulted from a newspaper-radio hubbub over a Baltimore court rule under which three radio stations and a commentator were convicted of contempt.

They had referred in broadcasts to statements by Eugene H. James, Negro handyman, after his arrest for the murder of an 11-year-old girl in Baltimore. James later was convicted.

He is also under indictment in Washington for the similar slaying of Carol Bardwell, also 11, in Rock Creek Park last June 27, nine days before the Baltimore murder.

The rule, No. 904 of the Supreme Bench, among other things bans:

Publication of actions or statements by an accused after his arrest, forecasts by anyone connected with a trial of its outcome and photographs of an accused without his consent.

Stromberg said his measure would apply to Rule 904, "which brought up the question of unreasonableness." He and a committee of the Maryland Press Association drew up the bill.

Court rules on practice have the force of law unless subsequently modified by the appelate court or otherwise by law," Stromberg said. The bill was referred to the judiciary committee.

Ousted Writer Says She Trod On Reds' Toes

New York, Feb. 25 (AP).—Anna Louise Strong, American newspaperwoman expelled from Russia, today said "all countries have stupid officials and prosecutors who, once they have decided against you, go out to get their man."

She made the comment to newsmen who had asked her the reason for Russia's action against her. The Soviet Union accused her of spying, an allegation she has denied.

Miss Strong said "I was stepping on somebody's toes" and "I was making many officials mad," but she did not identify those who were angered.

The interview took place after the writer had appeared before a Federal grand jury investigating subversive activities. She was excused until next Tuesday after a physician had certified she was suffering from exhaustion.

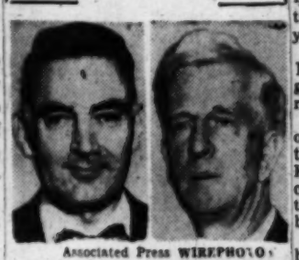
Miss Strong said she had been working in Moscow on an assignment.

"In the present disturbed condition in the world, any normal questions by a reporter arouse suspicion among lower officials of any government," she added.

She declined to say whether she was or is a Communist Party member. She added she would answer this question for the grand jury.

Elath Coming Here

McDonald Chosen First Israel Envoy



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
Eliahu Elath James McDonald
New nation's envoys

President Truman yesterday nominated James Grover McDonald, special U. S. representative in Israel, to be Ambassador to the new Jewish state.

McDonald, 62, first worked on Jewish problems as high commissioner for refugees from Germany in 1933-35. He also was a member of the 1946 Anglo-American Commission of Inquiry on Palestine.

He formerly taught at Harvard University, Radcliffe College and Indiana University. He also has been a newspaperman and a radio commentator.

The State Department announced that Israel has informed the United States that Eliahu Elath has been appointed the first Israeli Ambassador to this country.

Elath, who adopted the name of a Palestine area in place of the name Epstein by which he formerly was known, has served here as special representative of the provisional government of Israel.

Truman to Talk at U. N. Cornerstone Laying

Lake Success, Feb. 25 (AP).—President Truman will speak in New York April 10 at a cornerstone-laying ceremony on the site of permanent United Nations headquarters, the U. N. announced today.

Appearance of White House On Outside to Be Unchanged

When the White House is repaired its outside appearance will not be altered, a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee was assured yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator, gave the committee details on a request for $5,400,000 for the work.

"I think the White House is one of the most beautiful buildings in the world," observed Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), committee chairman. "I wouldn't have anything done to the outside of that building for the world."

"How much would it cost to just build a new White House?" asked Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.).

W. E. Reynolds, Commissioner of Public Buildings, answered:

"It would cost about $4,725,000, but, of course, we have given no thought toward doing that."

Ferguson also wanted to know who was responsible for "allowing this building to get into such bad shape."

Reynolds explained that the structure had been repaired "piecemeal" for years and that recent discoveries of weaknesses in the structure led to the over-all repair proposal.

In response to questions from Ferguson, Reynolds and Fleming explained it was planned to let contracts for the work on a cost-plus-fixed-fee basis, instead of by competitive bidding, "to avoid excess costs."

"I want a thick, tender, juicy steak

. . . so I'm going to Costin's
I feel like eating some good old-fashioned Sauerbraten.
. . . so I'm going to Costin's
I want some wonderful Fried Jumbo Shrimp.
. . . so I'm going to Costin's
I have a yen for a fine Wiener Schnitzel with buttered noodles.
. . . so I'm going to Costin's
I'm just in the mood for some good Fried Chicken, Golden and Crisp.
. . . so I'm going to Costin's
I'm hankering for some German Potato Pancakes.
. . . so I'm going to Costin's
I could eat some real Hungarian Goulash.
. . . so I'm going to Costin's
A piping hot bowl of French Onion Soup for me.
. . . so I'm going to Costin's
There is only one place for real Hungarian Paprika Chicken and how I love it.

Pepco Gross Mounts 15% In January

By S. Oliver Goodman

Operating revenues of Potomac Electric Power Co. increased 15 per cent in January, despite a narrowing of the gain in kilowatt hour sales.

Milder weather during the month brought the sales gain to only 3.87 per cent over January, 1948, somewhat less than the increases during the last several months.

Net income for the month totaled $432,292. On a comparable basis, net for the same 1948 month was $379,471. However, a bookkeeping adjustment due to the Sliding Scale Plan of rate regulation added $98,514 to the net income for January, 1948.

As explained by a company spokesman: "The final report under the modified Sliding Scale Plan . . . for the full year 1948 indicated that the deficiency below the 5½ per cent return for the year was $651,548, which was covered by transfer in November, 1948, to income from the deferred credits account . . . Since the new rates became effective on July 22, 1948, it has been assumed that the entire deficiency arose in the first seven months of 1948 . . . For comparative purposes a pro rata portion of the $651,548 has been assigned to each month of that period. On this basis, there remains $61,964 in the deferred credits account to cover any deficiency in the year 1948."

All of which means that for the first seven months of this year, the monthly net income figure will be compared with a 1948 figure that will have $98,514 added to it.

TRANSIT NET UP: Capital Transit Co. yesterday reported net income of $66,701 for January, compared with $4,521 in the same 1948 month. Revenue passengers showed a continued decline, numbering 26,341,647 for a drop of 9.7 per cent.

ODD LOTS: More than 70 members of Capital Airlines general offices here will attend the company's management and sales conference next week at Virginia Beach, Va. . . . Lester H. Juxtaposition Adjoining news stories from yesterday's New York Herald Tribune: Under a Washington dateline: "Peron Seeking 500 Million Dollars as Loans in United States; Hopes to Get 150 Million Dollars From New York Banks; Ready to Alter Policies." Under a Buenos Aires dateline: "Argentina Has Plan to Seize All Newsprint; Government Would Then Distribute It; Aimed at La Prensa, La Nacion." It was almost as if the copy editor was saying "Get the idea?"

Taft's Wisdom

One sure thing about the Eighty-first Congress is that Senator Taft is showing statesmanship on both domestic and foreign issues. He has lately been complimented for his constructive approach to the problem of finding a satisfactory compromise on labor legislation. The compliment has come from both parties in Congress. On foreign affairs his welcome of the North Atlantic security pact has been noteworthy. Now he has added to the statement warning words that need to be carefully pondered. He distinguishes, as we have, between a pact and arms consignments. "The general policy of providing arms for European nations, or other nations," he said, "raises grave doubts in my mind. Such a policy is in no sense a necessity in connection with the proposed North Atlantic Pact. In the case of some European countries, we can hardly tell now whether such arms eventually would be used for or against us." The emphasis here is upon "the general policy."

Senator Taft went on to speak about the "other nations." He specifies Latin America, though he could have mentioned China as well. "A year or so ago," he goes on, "the Army wanted to give arms to Latin-American countries. The recent history of revolutions there apparently has changed some official minds." We are glad to hear it. A year or so ago the Administration, egged on by the military, was hell-bent on putting through a hemisphere arms pact, with military missions attached, and there was scarcely a peep of protest. The realities appear to have taken the place of public opinion as a deterrent. If we cannot learn from common sense, then there is hope that we can learn from experience, and approach the issue of arms to Europe with objectivity untouched with hysteria.

Dr. Magnuson's Plan

Dr. Paul B. Magnuson happens to be chief medical director of the Veterans' Administration, but his proposal for attacking the national health problem is not an official program. It is his own individual solution and one that seems to us to have a good deal of merit. Relying heavily on certain techniques that have made the VA medical program so successful under his direction, he suggests a plan the key points of which are: local control, emphasis on expert diagnosis, and reliance in each State on universities and medical schools for personnel and nonpolitical supervision.

One of the great advantages Dr. Magnuson sees in this method of attack—and we agree with him—is that it employs as keystone a tested and proved organ of current medical practice, the community clinic. In many cities, towns, and even villages around the country large and small clinics are springing up to serve their localities better than the participating doctors could do separately. The clinic, being a cooperative project, can afford the expensive laboratory equipment and diagnostic instruments that a single practitioner can rarely afford. It brings to bear on each case all the best available technique and the advantages of close consultation among specialists at a cost that otherwise would be prohibitive.

Local control brings greater flexibility in dealing with local medical conditions and equally with local economic conditions. A community in close contact with its health problems, can handle its epidemic or endemic diseases to the best advantage, and fit its medical care and payment methods to the local economic environment. For Dr. Magnuson's idea rules out no form of group or other prepayment plan except the compulsory.

With local people paying part of the cost and determining the size of subsidy payments for service to those who cannot pay in full, Dr. Magnuson foresees less tendency to think of the program as a gift of Uncle Sam. This will be true, we suggest, in proportion as the local share of the subsidy is kept high and the Federal share at a minimum. This is a theoretically desirable attitude, but it conflicts with the fact that without a preponderant Federal allocation the rural and poorer communities would get little more medical care than they can now afford. And the job of balancing the two factors would require the existence of a Federal bureau of some size and authority.

But if Dr. Magnuson's plan does not completely avoid all the pitfalls of Federal compulsory health insurance, it certainly minimizes them. It would make an efficient use of the Nation's limited medical manpower, promising no more than can be performed. Perhaps the greatest single point in its favor is that it would encourage the cooperation of the medical profession instead of antagonizing it. And it would make a career in medicine more rather than less attractive to young men and women. For the present shortage of doctors, nurses, public health specialists, laboratory technicians, and the like, is the first obstacle to be overcome in any plan for expanding and improving medical care in this country.

"I Am The State"

In his Jackson-Jefferson Day address President Truman followed the pattern of his preelection attacks against the Eightieth Congress that helped to win votes and return him to office. This time, however, he directed his fire against those "special interests" that, he charges, "twist and misrepresent the measures the people voted for" at the last election. Apparently the President regards his victory at the polls as a mandate to force his legislative program through Congress, although that program was very sketchily outlined in his preelection speeches. Moreover, he assumes that it is the duty of a Democratically controlled Congress to follow passively wherever he leads. At any rate, all critics of the Administration's labor, anti-inflation, social security and other measures are denounced as selfish "special interest" groups, whose activities are inimical to the national welfare. There was a hint, too, that the President himself might resort to pressure tactics, if Congress failed to obey his commands, by taking another swing around the country to "tell the people how their Government is getting on."

This brand of political oratory is highly disturbing, because it shows that the President has some very false and dangerous ideas concerning the powers and duties of the Chief Executive. He seems to forget that lawmaking is a legislative process in which Congress plays the chief role. The President may—and should—use his influence to advise and try to persuade Congress to pass measures that he believes to be in the national interest. And he has great influence in molding legislation because of his veto power. But under our system of divided powers it is the duty of Congress to make its own legislative decisions after study and discussion. The "special interests" whom the President denounces because they object to certain policies and proposals that he approves are sometimes selfish and sometimes obstructive. But often their suggestions and criticisms are germane and constructive. In any case the method of hammering out legislation through public discussion by all interested groups is an integral part of the lawmaking process under a democratic system of government. If only the rubber stamp advocates of Administration-sponsored legislation were allowed to express their opinions, Congress might as well fold up and let the President run the Government as he sees fit.

This newspaper shares to some extent the President's irritation at those "special interest" groups that spend their time sniping at his programs without offering constructive suggestions for their modification. But even negative criticism is preferable to passive acquiesence. American democracy has survived and grown in strength because our laws are based on free and open discussion of controversial issues—the product of compromises. The President's intolerance of dissent and his assumption that what he considers best for the people is precisely what the people need and want is the type of thinking that put in power men like Hitler and Mussolini and enabled other dictators to defend suppression of free speech and free elections as a protection against enemies of the public welfare.

No Gloss, Please

Army Secretary Royall reportedly is drafting a reply to Agnes Smedley's protest over the infamous Japanese spy report. More than that is needed in repair work.

Publication of the report was utterly unprincipled. Without benefit of hearings, and on information originating with the discredited Japanese secret police, the report unmercifully smeared Miss Smedley and others—including a dead man—as prewar Communist spies in Japan. Irrespective of whether any of the information is entitled to credibility, the Army, moreover, grossly overreached its authority. It is not the business of the military to prosecute civilians for alleged acts that do not even involve the United States.

The Army's Public Information Division has acknowledged responsibility for releasing the report. Coming at a time when Secretary Royall was out of town and without the knowledge of General Bradley, this was a boner of the first magnitude. But the total responsibility cannot rest there. Why was this sort of broadside written in the first place? Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, General MacArthur's intelligence chief, under whose direction the report was prepared, says that it was a secret document never intended for public release. Why, if that is true, was the report heavily sensationalized with editorial comment that does not belong in a supposedly factual intelligence summary? The clear implication of the context is that the report was intended for other than the sober chambers of G-2.

The affair cannot be passed off as a mere pleasant indiscretion. In addition to answering Miss Smedley, Secretary Royall ought to be demanding some answers himself. He ought to be asking the real purpose of General Willoughby's report, why General MacArthur permitted the smears to be passed on in such unusual form, and what circumstances prompted the Public Information Division to release the report at this late date. Since the report was made public, the bad business should have a public airing. Not even Secretary Forrestal can afford to remain unconcerned with the disrepute into which the Army's standards of fairness have been cast.

Unifying Agriculture

It is not necessary to accept the Hoover Commission's estimate in monetary savings to see the value of a unified Department of Agriculture. The department is, as the Hoover group says, a loose confederation of independent bureaus and agencies. Some of these agencies overlap, as in farm credit, or actually conflict, as in the opposing conservation policies of the Soil Conservation Service, the Production and Marketing Administration and the Extension Service. Whether or not the streamlining and consolidation of these operations would bring the 80 million dollar saving the Hoover Commission cites (with the dissent of two of its members), certainly they would remove confusion and help bring more effective public service.

By and large, we believe, the recommendations of the commission are sound. It has modified extensively, for instance, the observations of the task force which ventured far off the track into the realm of policy on the touchy subject of price supports. The final report also has toned down unwarranted concessions to the Extension Service and land grant colleges and thus has avoided some of the opportunity for local political maneuvering.

Administratively the commission calls for what is in effect a chief of staff—an assistant secretary for administration—to tie together the various staff services. Beyond this the report urges the welding of all departmental functions into eight major units—staff, research, extension service, conservation, commodity adjustment, regulation, farm credit and rural electrification. This should facilitate the drawing together of the now disparate operations in these areas. Of particular significance is the commission's recommendation for drastically reducing and combining Federal field services at the county level. The multifarious agencies now represented at the local level often serve principally to confuse the farmer. The commission also would take advisory committees out of administration and render them purely consultative.

On natural resources and conservation the Hoover Commission recognizes the strife that now exists between Federal departments and reaches the sensible conclusion that the only answer is consolidation. It urges that all land agencies be grouped under the Department of Agriculture and that all water development activities remain with the Department of the Interior. This is a good start, but it does not go far enough. It by no means solves the real problem any more than does the suggested requirement that the Department of Agriculture report to the President and Congress on the use or timeliness of all irrigation or reclamation projects. For the fundamental fight will still remain on the many projects that involve both land and water development. There will be no really workable solution to such conflicts until all Federal activities dealing with natural resources are unified under one roof and one policy.

War Power

Debates in the Federal Convention of 1787 as reported by James Madison for August 17, 1787:

"To make war":

Mr. Pinckney opposed the vesting this power in the Legislature. Its proceedings were too slow. It wd. meet but once a year. The Hs. of Reps. would be too numerous for such deliberations. The Senate would be the best depositary, being more acquainted with foreign affairs, and most capable of proper resolutions. If the States are equally represented in Senate, so as to give no advantage to large States, the power will notwithstanding be safe, as the small have their all at stake in such cases as well as the large States. It would be singular for one authority to make war, and another peace.

Mr. Butler. The objections agst. the Legislature lie in great degree agst. the Senate. He was for vesting the power in the President, who will have all the requisite qualities, and will not make war but when the Nation will support it.

Mr. Madison and Mr. Gerry moved to insert "declare," striking out "make" war; leaving to the Executive the power to repel sudden attacks.

Mr. Sherman thought it stood very well. The Executive shd. be able to repel and not to commence war. "Make" better than "declare," the latter narrowing the power too much.

Mr. Gerry never expected to hear in a republic a motion to empower the Executive alone to declare war.

Mr. Ellsworth. There is a material difference between the cases of making war and making peace. It shd. be more easy to get out of war, than into it. War also is a simple and overt declaration. Peace attended with intricate & secret negotiations.

Mr. Mason was agst. giving the power of war to the Executive, because not safely to be trusted with it; or to the Senate, because not so constructed as to be entitled to it. He was for clogging rather than facilitating war; but for facilitating peace. He preferred "declare" to "make."

On the motion to insert declare—in place of make—it was agreed to.

N. H. no. Mas. abst. Cont. no. Pa. ay. Del. ay. Md. ay. Va. ay. N. C. ay. S. C. ay. Geo. ay.

*On the remark by Mr King that "make" war might be understood to "conduct" it which was an Executive function, Mr. Ellsworth gave up his objection, and the vote of Cont. was changed to—ay.

"AMA Alternative"

I was interested to read your editorial of February 15 concerning the "AMA Alternative" to the President's national health insurance plan.

The voluntary medical insurance plans favored by the AMA cover less than a sixth of the population and offer only limited protection. The AMA now proposes that Government funds be used to aid these voluntary plans through the States so that they can take in "indigent and medically 'ndigent" people. The AMA's own statistics show that 80 per cent of the population is not able to meet the expenses of serious illness out of its own resources. Under its new scheme, all of these citizens would have to be investigated and labeled indigent before they were entitled to Government aid. You may recall that the similar Taft "Charity bill" was never even reported out of committee in the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress.

The vast majority of the American people—who, as Mr. Marquis Childs so nicely puts it in his February 15 column—are too proud to accept charity, but for whom medical costs are prohibitively high, desperately want a plan which will entitle them, as Americans, not as indigents, to medical care.

Mr. Gallup reported in your pages last February 6 that the results of one of his polls showed that a majority of his sampling of people were willing to pay about $3.10 a month for health insurance. Discussion of the exact financing of national health insurance in still under way, but it is probable that a man earning $3000 a year would pay $3.75 or thereabouts per month for insuring himself and his family against the dread uncertainties of illness. "Armchair" Reporters

I have read with a great deal of interest Mr. J. R. Wiggins' comments of February 13 on "armchair correspondents" in Washington.

It appears to me that the biggest danger to good reporting from Washington is the tendency of reporters to identify themselves with the Government. This is due to a sense of cooperation with, or gratitude to, the men and bureaus who literally "make" the news.

For example, the Air Force is usually able to announce almost on alternate Mondays that it has a new plane which will go 30 or 300 miles an hour faster than anything before.

However, in a purely hypothetical case of this sort: the official national military establishment release on the plane will not tell how the first three models of this type couldn't get off the ground, and how many taxpayers' dollars were wasted in its development.

The aviation writer who may follow this plane closely from test flight to production has to keep on good terms with the various mammoth Government bureaus which handle the news about this plane. Even if he knows certain things beyond the official release, he may be reluctant to add them to the official report.

On top of this, there is the wall of public relations officers behind which Government operates. A good PRO, from Government's point of view, is one who can keep bad news out of the papers.

One thing that could be done is to encourage the so-called "pressure groups" which have axes to grind on Government policy to be more articulate in their criticisms of Government. Unfortunately they are discriminated against under present tax laws. Revising the unfair tax structure would aid the press by enlarging another source of independent non-Governmental views. Associate Secretary, National Council for Prevention of War.

Public Industry Strikes

Congress should adopt a law prohibiting strikes against all public service corporations and large industrial corporations engaged in producing, distributing or operating necessities of life, and also against educational, charitable and religious organizations.

Such strikes are clearly not a legitimate use of the fair rights of organized labor, but rather an attempt to strangle the public. The public's right to a continuity of all essential services is paramount to any disputes between factional or economic groups in labor-employer relations.

For over 75 years a Federal criminal statute has prohibited interference with the postal service. (United States Criminal Code, Sec. 201, "Obstructing the Mail"). Why should not these other services, even more vital to the public, be similarly protected? SAMUEL ZIRN.

"Boost For Tolerance"

Your editorial of February 19 regarding the membership policy of the American Association of University Women and an article of February 17 on which the editorial is based make references to the Washington branch of the AAUW that give an erroneous impression.

The article refers to the recent endorsement by a local branch of "an interpretation" by "the parent body" of the by-laws of the AAUW "governing eligibility for membership." The only body legally competent to change the by-laws, by interpretation or otherwise, is the biennial national convention. From the context of the article and editorial it would appear that the reference is to a personal interpretation by officials.

The article also refers to the decision of the Federal District Court in favor of the Washington branch against the effort of present officers of the national board to expel the branch. The article, however, fails to state that the court upheld the branch interpretation of the by-laws as the correct interpretation, pointing out that any change desired must be made by the national convention and not by individual officers.

Your February 19 editorial "Boost For Tolerance" is a heartwarming contribution to the controversy in the American Association of University Women as is the action of the Arlington branch. Charges Against Spain

It is my intention to challenge the sweeping assertion made by Mr. Norman Thomas, when, naming himself chairman of the Postwar World Council, a nonpartisan body, he stated, in his letter of February 11: "We have received apparently well-established complaints of horrible cruelty practiced by Franco police and courts against workers suspected of challenging his dictatorial rule."

I wonder if Mr. Thomas is aware that in 1934 the so-called "moderate" Spanish Socialists, under the leadership of Indalecio Prieto, organized a Soviet-style revolt in Asturias against the elected Republican government of Spain. The same Indalecio Prieto has admitted that he consented to the formation of the notorious S. I. M. (The Spanish Loyalist Military Intelligence Corporation) "under pressure of agents of Soviet Russia, who were participating in the Spanish civil war on the side of the Spanish Socialists and Communists." (Report of the Committee on Un-American Activities, Washington, 1946.)

The charges themselves are gratuitous because evidence is not furnished, nor the time, place, number, or nature of the alleged "cruelties" enumerated.

Similar statements have previously been the object of close investigation by American correspondents with the result that the charges were exposed as false. I refer particularly to the charge that concentration camps existed in Spain. Mr. Constantine Brown requested and was granted an interview with the head of the Spanish state, in which he received the following offer: "Generalissimo Franco invited me to go wherever I liked without interference of any kind in an effort to find these camps and prove the falsity of the charges." Mr. Brown thereupon proceeded to Paris where he asked "from persons close to the Spanish government in exile" the specific location of these camps, but the result was that "after many conversations I (Mr. Brown) was finally told that there were no longer any camps in Spain."

I would like to stress the substantial difference between "workers" whose first allegiance is to their respective countries, and "workers" who "work" for a foreign country, i. e., Soviet Russia. The last mentioned category of "workers" are subject in Spain, as in the United States, to the criminal law against spies, and, if their operations involve sabotage, to punishment corresponding to the gravity of their offenses.

That criminal action has been instigated against Spain is revealed by the Daily Worker on January 24. According to this newspaper, one of the great merits of the WFTU, an international organization exploited by the Soviets, is just this: "It has helped to mobilize the workers of all lands against the Franco regime in Spain."

Finally, in answer to Mr. Thomas' appeal for the Pope to discover the nature of his charges and "to raise his powerful voice in protest." On December 12, 1948, Mr. Arnaldo Cortesi reported in the New York Times that the Pope "sent his 'affectionate blessing' to Generalissimo Francisco Franco and the Spanish government." During the same address, the Pope made allusion to well-meaning persons whose "efforts have lost themselves between the mirages of apparent truths behind the preconceived dogmatisms of false conceptions."

Expanding Dream World

By Malvina Lindsay

Escape Into Comics

IT BEGINS to look as if those who don't have an intimate acquaintance with all the Brawny Petes and Voluptuous Violets of the comic strips, as well as the Moaning Mabels of the soap operas, will soon be living in a very lonely world of reality.

Despite all the furor being raised about comic books, the dream world this enterprise has created continues to expand. Argument grows as to whether its citizens should put away their pistols and put on more clothes.

The French General Assembly has been vigorously debating this matter. The New York State Legislature is now in controversy over it. Women's clubs of this country are asking better control of the American comic books made available to German children. And soap operas keep their stronghold despite the shrieks of women who don't like them.

Now the United States Children's Bureau reports that comic book reading is the commonest leisure time activity of middle childhood, and that the average child of 9, 10, 11 keeps up with 23 comic strips. In its recent publication, Your Child From 6 to 12, on which about 100 child experts passed, the bureau raises—but does not answer—the question: What is there about our society that makes necessary such forms of entertainment? It suggests one explanation might be that "parents are too busy or too far off from the world of childhood to give thought to the prevention of frustrations in their children."

CHILDREN have always had their dream worlds, through fairy tales and inventions of their imaginations. But technology by means of radio, television and color prints has greatly enlarged their world of makebelieve. Similarly, adults are living more and more in an imagined world. The radio serial greatly contributes to this. A recent Hooper survey—made in reply to the charge of California women's groups that only a small minority of women listened to soap operas—reported that radios in more than 7 of every 10 American homes are tuned in to at least one soap opera a week.

The anti-soap opera groups are not as impressed by surveys as they once were, and what is more, they point out that those who listen to daytime radio programs have little or no freedom of choice. Nevertheless they concede the widespread influence of the serials, which they insist are "predominantly negative," dealing with murder, infidelity, blackmail, neurotic maladjustments. Women who listen defend this depressing otherworld by saying it makes their own troubles seem less by comparison.

Adults, like children, have always had their world of fictional escape, largely in the past through novels and movies. Yet it was a smaller world, and as portrayed in the Bertha M. Clay novels and the movie love idyls, a somewhat more romantic and happier world than the one in which they now live.

NO DOUBT the threatening and disturbed real world of today causes many grown-ups to seek escape in comic strips and radio serials. This might even cause children, who sense more than they understand, to seek more avidly the companionship of Superman and his cohorts.

At any rate this dream world is easily available to them both through sight and sound. To live in it is much easier than to think up things to do in the back yard. But, as the Children's Bureau study points out, parents should see to it that their children have something more than secondhand experience, even if it means taking them fishing or helping them build scooters.

Since most children will probably continue life, like their elders, with one foot in the land of never-never, it becomes necessary to have some law in that land. Even the French, noted for their free attitude toward fiction, drama, and art, have passed a law to protect children and adolescents by forbidding any publication building up banditry, stealing, hatred, cowardice and cheating.

These are much the same goals sought by Americans who would reform comic books. But a bigger problem than censorship is to get parents to help their children learn to live more actively in the world in which rent and grocery bills must be paid with real money.

Atomic Defense

Undoubtedly, a great many of your readers were shocked, as was I, upon reading your issue of February 22, a story which said that Government officials were reluctant to tell the American people how to protect themselves against an atom bomb attack because peoples elsewhere thus might learn how also to protect themselves.

Does that mean that officials of our Government are ready to risk the sacrifice of perhaps millions of American lives just to make certain that destruction could overtake millions of innocent peoples abroad? I had thought that America's military might was to be aimed at military objectives, not at helpless populations.

MARGARET LAMBE.

Tax Revision

A Communication

THERE ARE several candidates for the unwelcome job of procuring the four billion dollars of additional revenue requested by the President in his recent budget message. The President has simply suggested in general terms "that the principal source should be additional taxes upon corporate profits," without any further specification of the kind of tax he preferred. The excess profits tax and an increase in the regular corporate income tax are the leading candidates for the job. Federal Reserve Board Governor Marriner Eccles has recently put forward a third candidate, namely, an undistributed profits tax.

Upon the promise of continued "high prosperity," I have publicly stated my preference for an excess-profits tax for temporary service in the present fiscal emergency. Governor Eccles favors an excess profits tax in contrast to an increase in the present corporate rate. But even more he prefers a special tax on corporate earnings which are not paid out as dividends.

Mr. Eccles thinks that a 15 per cent tax on corporate earnings retained would yield the Government about two billion dollars if these earnings continue at the 1948 level. Mr. Eccles could quote in support of his proposal a report issued in 1939, after two years' study by a special committee of the National Tax Association, which included some of the outstanding tax experts of the country. The report unanimously stated:

"By its action in 1939 allowing the undistributed profits tax to lapse, Congress merely retreated from this problem without solving it . . . To exempt (undistributed profits) would not only be grossly unfair to those using other forms of saving but would also provide a broad avenue for evasion . . ."

This statement is more true today than it was 10 years ago when it was made. Profits after taxes were five billion dollars in 1939, of which 1.2 billion, or 24 per cent, were retained. In 1948 profits after taxes were 20.8 billion dollars, of which 13.2 billion, or 63.5 per cent, were retained.

IT IS AL undeniable fact that there exists a gross disparity between the taxes imposed on profits distributed as dividends and the taxes imposed on profits retained by corporations. profits distributed and profits retained are both subject to a tax of 38 per cent (or a somewhat lower tax in the case of small corporations). Profits distributed are not subject to an additional tax in the hands of very low-bracket stockholders, but they are subject to individual taxes ranging up to about 82 per cent in the hands of high-bracket stockholders. This discrimination in favor of undistributed corporate profits has developed out of our system of improvised, haphazard tax legislation to meet emergencies, and has no foundation in reason or fact for its continued existence today.

Economically, corporate profits, whether distributed or not, benefit the stockholder. The stockholder has dividends separated from the corporation when corporate profits are distributed. But unseparated undistributed profits increase the value of stock, though the increase in value, for a number of reasons, may not be in the same amount as the accumulated profits.

The stockholder may allow the increase to stand as unrealized appreciation in value of stock, which is not taxed as income, or he may continue to hold the stock until death, in which event the increased value will never be subjected to income tax, even in the hands of his estate. The stockholder may also realize a profit through the sale of the stock during his lifetime; his gain is then subject only to the relatively low capital gains tax.

This we need to remember in offset to the frequent complaint that corporations and their stockholders are oppressed by "double" taxation. Except for the special penalty tax imposed for accumulating profits beyond the reasonable needs of the business, whatever "double" taxation there may be reaches only distributed corporate profits; it does not touch undistributed profits unless stock is sold during the lifetime of the stockholder, and then the maximum second tax is at the favorable capital gain rate.

IT IS far from my intention to suggest that tax avoidance is the only motive for failure to distribute corporate profits. It certainly cannot be fairly said that the 63.5 per cent of corporate profits after taxes remaining accumulated in 1948—a total of 13.2 billion dollars—were retained only to prevent the imposition of the personal income tax upon shareholders. To a large degree these profits are retained to finance plant expansion and to add to working capital.

Across the board industry now does between 65 and 70 per cent of its financing out of retained earnings and depreciation and depletion reserves without resort to the outside capital market; retained corporate profits have become the principal available risk capital. On the other hand, a substantial amount of corporate profits remains undistributed, even at the risk of the 27½ to 38 per cent penalty tax on unreasonable corporate accumulations, because of a purpose to avoid the high surtax which would be imposed upon high-bracket individual stockholders if the profits were distributed.

The Eccles suggestion is based upon the philosophy that corporate management should consult its stockholders about any substantial new investment, or expansion program, or departure from previous channels of activity. Although this philosophy has great appeal to me, I am reluctantly driven to the conclusion that we should be content for the time being with a moderate profits tax for immediate delivery. On the other hand, for the long run we should be less than content with what is little more than a stop-gap expedient.

What is urgently needed is a thorough exploration of the relationship of personal and corporate income taxation for the purpose of having a program ready when some reduction in the present tax load is feasible once more. There could be many undesirable effects of a hastily contrived undistributed profits tax which is not sufficiently combined with other desirable changes in the corporate and personal income tax structure.

Furthermore, we cannot ignore the necessity of improvements in our capital market institutions if we more generally adopt the theory that management's decisions on questions of corporate expansion should be screened through the capital market. It is better to have no undistributed profits tax for the time being than a tax which may, like that of 1936, discredit for a long time to come the principle of undistributed profits taxation.

THE undistributed profits tax of 1936, with its many virtues, was an attempted, and probably misguided, solution of the whole problem of corporate taxation. Various methods of taxing undistributed profits are now available.

One proposal would not necessarily involve any actual distribution of corporate profits; it would provide merely that the corporation retaining its earnings be required to give the stockholder an information certificate so that he could include in his return his appropriate share of undistributed profits.

Another proposal provides for a prohibitive tax on undistributed earnings which forces full distribution and taxation to the individual stockholder; the corporation would then be forced to appeal to stockholders for the funds it wished to recoup for expansion.

A third type of proposal provides for a compensatory tax roughly equivalent to the tax paid by the average stockholder. Still another type of proposal provides for a tax credit for corporation or stockholder on account of distributed earnings.

Finally, various proposals for incentive taxation allow not only for the deduction of dividends, but also for the deduction of that part of corporate profits which has been invested in certain specified types of business expansion. This last proposal could be made sufficiently flexible so that the tax would aid in ironing out fluctuations in business investments.

The problem is difficult and complicated. It basically affects investment policies, the financial opportunities of large and small business, and relationships between stockholders and management. It would be highly desirable for the appropriate congressional committees and the executive departments to tackle this problem of revising the whole corporate tax structure so that we shall not be caught unprepared a second time.

People of Hungary Resent Cardinal's Trial, Chapin Says

New York, Feb. 25 (NYHT.).—Selden Chapin, American Minister to Hungary, returned today aboard the Queen Mary with the conviction the Communist-dominated Hungarian government is sorely beset by embittered sentiment within the country against the trial and life sentence meted out to Josef Cardinal Mindszenty.

Chapin, accompanied by his wife, was headed for Washington for discussions with Secretary of State Acheson.

Chapin withheld comment "to any extent" on Hungary.

"I will say, however, that it is my impression that the Hungarian government is annoyed and troubled by the amorphous and repressed character of Hungarian public reaction to the trial," Chapin said. "They would like to have a valid measure of its intensity.

"But this is denied them by the increasing and very considerable police terror which they themselves have created. This uncertainty may be one explanation for their fear as expressed in the organized public meetings and the hysterical press campaign which they are currently pushing."

Two Pastors Detail Guilt As Sofia Spy Trial Opens

zenty in that foreign correspondents and foreign diplomatic observers were freely admitted. There were loud speakers to aid hearing. The leisurely pace of the trial contrasted with the speed of the Mindszenty trial.

Court President Constantine Undjev opened the trial shortly after 8:30 a. m. By the time court adjourned at 8:15 p. m., the pattern had been set for all defendants to proclaim openly the guilt which, the prosecution said, they had admitted in pretrial statements.

"Do you plead guilty?" asked Undjiev. "Thell the truth and only the truth. If you tell the truth, the court will take into account that you are repentant."

"I confess I am guilty," Naumov said in a clear voice. "I am sincerely sorry for what I have done."

For hours, Naumov confessed, admitted, recanted, renounced.

Naumov's voice cracked at times as he said that he had been well treated since his arrest and said he had been won over by the "good behavior of the security officials."

Again and again, Naumov praised the Communist-led Bulgarian state.

Naumov said that from the fall of September, 1944, when Bulgaria surrendered to the Allies, he obtained and delivered economic, political and military information to "foreign intelligence" agents. The government charges they were Americans.

Naumov said he received $350 from Dr. William Coon of the Baptist Missions for his first report and sold the dollars on the black market to get funds for his church organization. He said he received instructions from Protestant churchmen in the United States, Switzerland and elsewhere to supply information and fight communism.

Later, Naumov said, he received instructions from Cyril Black, then secretary of the United States political mission here, to "bring your reports here" instead of taking them to Coon.

Black, Naumov alleged, "asked me to bring him information on military factories" among other things.

Naumov, 49, 6 feet tall and robust, left the stand at 4:30 p. m. after cross-examination and Ivanov was called.

Ivanov, supervisor of the Methodist Church in Bulgaria and vice president of the Supreme Council of the United Evangelical Churches of Bulgaria, promptly admitted his guilt and brought the name of Russia into the trial for the first time.

He said he had been brought up "under American influence" and that this "and other things helped me to agree to act against communism and against the Soviet Union."

Ivanov, 48, is slight, lame and bald. He spoke in a clear steady voice, in contrast to Naumov, but he became hoarse as he talked on and on.

Ivanov said he set up an intelligence service for Black.

"Cyril Black asked us to supply information telling of the people's dissatisfaction with the government, rumors about concentration camps, the work of the People's Courts and so forth," Ivanov said.

"Black further instructed me to collect information about Soviet forces in Bulgaria, their attitude toward the people and the people's attitude toward them."

Ivanov said this information was sent to Black through Dean Melaney Turner of the women's college, and later through Dean Helen Cooper.

In return for this work, Ivanov said, Black at his request "managed to arrange for our pastors to receive a regular salary." He said he received about $99 a month and additional awards for "special tasks." He said Black also arranged to send parcels from the United States.

At various times in 1945, Ivanov said, he received money from Robert Strong of the American legation.

Bringing in the name of Nikola Petkov, opposition political leader whose execution for treason was a world sensation, Ivanov said:

"Black asked me early in 1945 to arrange an appointment with Petkov so that Petkov might be encouraged to leave the fatherland front (the government bloc) in order to carry on a more effective campaign in behalf of America."

Ivanov will continue his testimony tomorrow.

The American official observer at today's hearing was Mrs. Mary Johnston, legation press attache. John Sanders, acting British press attache, represented his country. Both understand Bulgarian.

O'Conor Files Resolution For U. N. Action on Trial

Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) yesterday introduced a resolution authorizing President Truman to place before the United Nations the prosecution of 15 Protestant church leaders by the Bulgarian government.

The Maryland Democrat said "freedom-loving people are shocked and horrified" by prosecution of the churchmen.

Acheson Lauds Pact Progress

an attack on any member nation will be regarded as an attack on all, and it is believed that this clause will mention use of armed support if required.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who has previously declared his support of a pact similar to the Inter-American security pact for mutual aid, signed in 1947 at Rio de Janeiro, yesterday expressed fears about the armament-aid program intended to support the Atlantic Pact.

Declared Taft:

"I believe the arming of European countries, particularly Norway, is more likely to lead to military attack by Russia than it is to contribute to the peace of the world."

He said the whole arms-aid program raises doubts in his mind, b that he has not yet decided whether to oppose this aid.

Asked for comment on this, Acheson said with a laugh that inasmuch as Senator Taft was making up his mind, he would do nothing to influence him.

In line with previous indications, Secretary Atcheson said that the armament legislation proposal for Atlantic pact countries would also include military aid to nations not included in the pact for geographical reasons.

The total military aid is expected to be a billion dollars or more, with separate help for such countries as Greece and Turkey. The arms legislation will be sent to Congress after the treaty proposal is submitted.

Acheson said the State Department has received no information on a news report from Finland that Russian troop strength is being increased near the Norwegian border, nor has it had any proposal on Communist-circulated recommendations in Berlin for a general withdrawal of occupation troops there.

A large portion of the press conference was given to Acheson's remarks on proposals to strengthen the State Department, made last week by the Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government.

Acheson, vice chairman of that commission, said many of the report's recommendations are already being instituted in the department.

Legislation to carry out those reforms which cannot be accomplished in the department itself will be submitted to Congress this session, he said. Most controversial of these is a proposal to merge the professional Foreign Service with the department staff over a period of years, with personnel to be used interchangeably on foreign and domestic duty.

Two new posts of deputy assistant secretary were recommended and, if they are to be filled as such, legislation will be needed, said Acheson. Legislation also would be required for four new assistant secretaries.

Many of the changes have been contemplated for some time, Acheson noted, and a principal means of relieving him for top-level action will be through placing full resuonsibility for their work on the chiefs of the European, Latin American, Far Eastern, Near East-African, international organization, and public affairs offices.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Our Responsibility To Scandinavia

THE LONG shadow cast by the decision taken by Norway and the United States is as yet hardly apparent. Only with events that are expected to flow from this decision will its far-reaching consequences be realized both here and in western Europe.

Childs

But it is not too early to bring home to Americans the responsibility this country must bear for inducing Norway to join the Atlantic alliance. To join, it might be added, before the alliance has taken a definite form or been accepted by the participating nations of western Europe.

The declaration by the State Department that arms from the United States would go only to countries in the alliance appears to have been the clinching factor with the Norwegians. Behind this declaration was a prolonged campaign of persuasion on both Norway and Sweden. The Swedes were given a clear intimation that unless they quickly made up their minds to come into the alliance, the United States would have to decide that Sweden was strategically indefensible.

From one American who knows Scandinavia well has come a note of grave warning. Lithgow Osborne, United States Ambassador to Norway from 1944 to 1946 and now head of the American Scandinavian Foundation, has made available to several Senators a memorandum setting forth cogent reasons why the State Department should hesitate before disrupting the unity achieved by the three Scandinavian countries.

WHILE the die seems to have been finally and fatally cast, the Osborne memorandum is important since it underscores so heavily the significance of the step that has been taken. For that reason excerpts are printed here. Osborne presented two points for immediate and urgent consideration as follows:

"1. Withdrawal of our opposition to a mutual Scandinavian defense alliance. In view of the rugged democratic character of the Scandinavian peoples and their unquestionable ideological sympathy with the West, an independent position for them seems unimportant. In fact, the more 'neutral' such a defense pact is, the more it works in our favor in that it furnishes less provocation to Russia. Under it we would, it is true, be precluded from any active collaboration with the Scandinavians on defensive measures; on the other hand, we also would be relieved of additional moral obligations which would certainly devolve on us, if one or more of the Scandinavian countries joined the Atlantic Pact at our insistence.

"2. A statement that any western European democracy or group of democracies which is prepared to defend itself against aggression will be eligible to receive military supplies. Why should the Scandinavian countries be treated worse in this respect than Turkey, Greece or Korea?

"The high degree of unity of the northern democracies is one of the bright spots in present-day Europe. It is one of the cornerstones on which the reconstruction of the continent depends. Its disruption would be unfortunate for us as well as for Scandinavia. To destroy it now for the sake of securing one or two more members of the still-non-existent Atlantic Pact seems at the best doubtful wisdom and at worst extremely dangerous."

REGARDLESS of the official terms of the pact, the grave moral responsibility of the United States, as Osborne points out, can hardly be overstressed. That responsibility is to the Norwegian people who for four years endured the sinister tyranny of Nazi occupation.

How the masters of Soviet Russia in the Kremlin will react no one may predict with any certainty. Their reaction may well be one of fear, prompting them to take advantage of the treaty with Finland, permitting Russia to use Finland as, in effect, a military base. Contrary to popular impression, Russia's reactions often can be explained more readily by weakness and fear rather than by strength and arrogance.

But if the Kremlin bosses were to react in the most cool and calculated fashion, they might follow exactly the same course. They could calculate that by projecting their force right up to the Norwegian border, they would frighten Norway into calling on America for immediate and large-scale military assistance.

The supply of arms from this country is necessarily limited. Yet the Government would feel under compulsion to respond to Norway's cry for help. As a consequence, arms urgently needed to strengthen western Europe would be deflected to the north. The net effect might be actually to strengthen Russia's strategic position in Europe.

mentary immunity of the aged French Communist leader, Marcel Cachin. It was explained that Cachin, as director of L'Humanite, could be held responsible for the fact that the paper printed the statement: "The French people will never make war against Russia." Parliamentary debate in Cachin's case is scheduled for next Friday.

Requests for lifting the immunity of Maurice Thorez, Communist secretary general, and other Communist members of Parliament are expected to follow. Deputies deprived of immunity would be subject to possible arrest.

on the first year of operations that: "In 1949-50 ECA believes that participating countries might achieve a small surplus on non-dollar current accounts."

This, they point out, indicates full prior realization of what could develop in any participating nation's economy.

President Truman, when asked at his press conference on Thursday to comment on the Mayhew speech, said he was not familiar with it, and while he was glad to hear such good indications, the Marshall Plan should run its full term unless it became clear the British condition is as good as indicated.

Secretary Acheson indicated such strong need to clarify any doubts resulting from Mayhew's speech that he permitted the following direct quotation:

Asked, "Do you feel that the recovery of Britain has now advanced sufficiently to the point for the United States to consider tapering-off their foreign aid," he replied:

"Most certainly I do not. I think a great deal of confusion has been created by a well-intentioned and somewhat over-enthusiastic statement. Of course, the recovery of Great Britain is one of the very encouraging things. But that recovery is entirely based upon the ECA program and it is the ECA which is making up the gap in the British balance of payments. If it were not for that, there would not be that recovery. I think what we can cheer ourselves up with is the great success of the program in that recovery. If it were not aiding recovery it would not be a successful program. But to stop it now would, of course, as I said before the Senate, undo everything that has been done and jeopardize the entire future of western Europe."

Europe Seeks 'Deliverance,' Churchill Says

Brussels, Feb. 25 (NYHTI.—Winston Churchill said here today "the ultimate purpose" of the movement to unify western Europe was the "deliverance" of continental peoples "held in the grip of a tyranny more permanently devastating than that of Hitler."

The former British Prime Minister did not specify how this was to be done.

Speaking at the first plenary council of the "European movement," Churchill addressed the "deliverance" part of his keynote speech to exiles who represent Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Polaid, Romania and Yugoslavia.

Along with other expatriates from Flangist Spain, the exiled delegations have joined the European movement.

Paul Henri Spaak, Premier and Foreign Minister of Belgium, told the opening session of the 23-nation council meeting that "it is necessary—absolutely necessary—that Europe be united" to defend her cultural and democratic way of life. The council is an unofficial body.

Today's meeting was primarily called to draft a proposal for a human rights convention and for an inter-European court with the power to enforce the code. The proposal, after drafting, is to be submitted to the official council of Europe.

Ethridge Nomination Approved by Committee

By the United Press

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday approved the nomination of Mark F. Ethridge, Louisville, Ky., publisher, to serve on the United Nations Peace Commission in Palestine.

Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, already is in Palestine carrying out his duties in the $12,000-a-year post.

His appointment was held up by the committee for several weeks as a result of objections by Senator Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.), who has announced he will vote against confirmation.

Lenten Rites Start Next Wednesday

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Lent, the 40-day period of fasting and prayer which precedes Easter, will begin for Christians throughout the world on Wednesday. Easter will be April 17.

Originally observed for 40 hours, commemorating the time between Christ's death on the cross and his resurrection, Lent has been a 40-day rite since the ninth century.

Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent, is so called because of the practice in the Roman Catholic Church of placing ashes on the forehead of worshipers as a sign of penitence and humility and a reminder that man is dust and will return to dust.

Services have been planned for Ash Wednesday and throughout the Lenten season by Washington churches and religious organizations. Details of Ash Wednesday services will be printed in The Washington Post on Tuesday. Each Saturday during Lent, the schedule of services for the following week will appear on the church page of The Washington Post.

This Sunday every child in Episcopal Church schools in the Washington diocese will receive a Lenten mite box for pennies to be saved during Lent. The children will bring their pennies, to be used for the missionary budget of the church, to a Children's Day Service at the Washington Cathedral on May 21.

At Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and R sts. nw., Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, the pastor, will preach on "What Will You Do With Lent" at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Albright Memorial Church, 4th and Rittenhouse sts. nw., will begin its observance of Lent with a service of Holy Communion for young people at 7 p. m. Sunday.

On Shrove Tuesday, confessions will be heard at Ascension and Saint Agnes Church, 12th and Massachusetts ave. nw., from 7:30 to 8 a. m., from noon to 1 p. m., from 4 to 5 p. m., and from 7:30 to 8:30 p m.

A traditional Shrove Tuesday dinner will be served by the Women's Auxiliary of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 15th and Church sts. nw., from 2 to 7 p. m. Tuesday.

Noonday Lenten services will be held daily at the Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol st., at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., and at the National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw. beginning Wednesday and continuing through Good Friday. Services will not be held on Saturdays.

The services at National Presbyterian Church are sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches and will begin at 12:05 p. m. and be concluded at 12:35 p. m. Washington clergymen of 10 denominations will speak at the services.

Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, will preach on Ash Wednesday and on Thursday, and Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Christian Church, will preach on Friday.

Will Observe 25th Anniversary

Members of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, K st., near 24th st. nw., will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Rev. Arlington A. McCallum's rectorship at 11:15 a. m. Sunday.

Fr. McCallum

Father McCallum came to St. Paul's on March 2, 1924, from St. Luke's Church, Lebanon, Pa. He was educated at St. John's College, Winnipeg, Canada, and Seabury-Western Divinity School and had previously served as a missionary in Wyoming.

During World War I he served overseas as chaplain of the "Rainbow Division," and was called back into service briefly during World War II.

Under Father McCallum's leadership members of St. Paul's built a new church, which was dedicated in July, 1948, after the original building was torn down to make room for the George Washington University Hospital.

He has been president of the Chaplain's Association, United States Army, chaplain general of the Military Order of World War I, and chaplain of the Soldier's Home in Washington.

Arts Program Will Feature Jewish Music

A concert of Jewish music will be one of the features of an evening of the arts at the Washington Hebrew Congregation, 816 8th st. nw., following the regular service at 8:15 p. m. Friday.

In addition, paintings and sculpture by a group of Washington artists will be shown. The art exhibition will remain on view for a month.

Works illustrating the character of ancient liturgical Hebrew music, Jewish folk music and the spirited songs of modern Israel will be played during the program.

The 25-voice Hillel Chorale of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, George Washington University, Alfred Manning, harpist; the choir of the congregation, and Jacob Barkin, cantor of Adas Israel Congregation, will participate.

Paintings by Benjamin Abramowitz, Samuel Bookatz, Sophie Corwin, Joyce Field, Doris Haskel, Anna Herman, Jacob Kainen, David Leibovici, Norma Mazo, Maurice Newman, Jack Perlmutter and Therese Schwartz will be shown. The sculpture will be the work of Lilli Gettinger, Shirley Lichtman, Sarah Silverman and Leo Steppat.

Guests will have an opportunity to meet the artists and musicians at a reception following the program.

Dr. Spottswood's Topic

Divisions Cut to 10

Army Force In Alaska to Be Doubled

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Army strength in Alaska will be doubled, the Army Department announced yesterday, while that in the Far East will be continued at present levels.

At a news conference presenting plans for reorganization to meet the reduced 1950 budget, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Deputy Chief of Staff, made it clear that the Army had no intention of pulling out of Japan in case of trouble. If any attack should be launched in that direction, he declared, "American troops would certainly fight."

Later, questioned on a radio interview, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall said American troops will fight if Japan is attacked, and that he believes they could hold that country against Russia or anyone else.

He quickly added that "I don't think Russia will attack, and I don't think war is imminent."

Heaviest losses to conform with reduced funds will be in forces assigned to the "general reserve" in the continental United States. These forces will be cut from a projected 510,000 to 418,000.

The Army as a whole will be reduced from the 12 divisions once described as essential to security to 10 divisions, of which four will be in the Far East, one in Europe and five in the United States. Asked if he thought this reduction would leave the U. S. inadequately protected, Collins said:

"I wouldn't say the situation is critical at this moment. But a 12-division force is what we think we should have."

Divisions being eliminated are the Sixth, formerly in Korea, and the Eighth, which had been assigned to the mobile striking force of the general reserve. Both are infantry divisions.

Under the schedule as made public yesterday, the 7000 troops in Alaska will be increased to 13,200. The 127,000 in the Far East will remain at that figure, 92,000 will be assigned to Europe, 7000 to the Pacific (Hawaii), 14,000 to the Caribbean, and 5000 to Trieste.

Col. George Rehm, chief of the organization and operations section of the organization and training division, called attention to "a noticeable difference" between the ratio of combat to service units in the Eastern and European theaters. In Europe, he pointed out, 72 per cent of the force is tactical while in the Far East, tactical units comprise 88 per cent.

"Shortly after the war ended, General MacArthur was given a tactical mission to defend Japan," he said. "Because of this he retained a tactical organization including the maximum number of combat type units. A sizable number of these units, however, are used on overhead duties such as operating military communities . . . If the situation should dictate, these troops could and would be brought together immediately for tactical employment.

"General Clay (commanding in Germany) did not have a tactical mission until much later. Therefore, rather than have additional combat units which would, of necessity, be employed on overhead duties, he recommended the use of units tailored to perform the specific jobs."

Services May Draft Doctors U. S. Trained

A draft of doctors who have been educated at Government expense will be requested if other mthods of relieving an expected critical shortage in the armed services fails, Defense Secretary Forrestal said yesterday.

Before asking for a draft, Forrestal said, other appeals will be tried, including efforts to reach young physicians through professional societies. There are 15,000 doctors and dentists, he explained, who were educated by the Government or were withheld from combat service to complete their medical education.

"Of this group," Forrestal said, "8000 received all or part of their professional training at Government expense—the remaining 7000 paid for their own education, but were excused from the draft and combat service.

"I believe those 15,000 men who saw no service overseas and who were not exposed to the rigors of war will themselves recognize our right to appeal to them to make a contribution in this emergency."

Alternatives Given

Although he repeated that he was not "pointing an accusing finger" or "castigating" these men, Forrestal's announcement at a morning news conference was made with unmistakable seriousness. If enough doctors and dentists do not volunteer to relieve the "dangerous" shortage facing the services, he said, these alternatives remained:

1. "We can ask for a draft of physicians and dentists in the amount needed to provide these adequate services. We are most reluctant to request this step."

2. "We can ask the physicians and dentists who already have served in World War II and who have reserve commissions to come back into service."

3. "We can issue an order which will hold up some of the men now on active duty and whose service time is actually up."

4. "We can ask for volunteers from the 15,000 men whom we educated as physicians and dentists and who have not served, and those who were deferred to complete their education and did not serve.

The second and third alternatives, he said, were neither "desirable nor even fair."

Short of Dollars

Argentina Eases Trade Monopoly

Buenos Aires, Feb. 25 (AP).—Argentina has decided to return at least part of its foreign trade to private business after experimenting three years with a state monopoly.

Experts said today that announcement last night of the curbing of the Argentine Trade Promotion Institute (IAPI) was due in part of the country's serious dollar shortage.

Other government steps announced yesterday included gasoline rationing, limiting market speculation and a plan to seize and distribute newsprint as the Peron government sees fit.

Dr. Roberto Ares, the Minister of Economy, announced most of the country's importing will go back to private business.

Ares said IAPI in the future will buy only things needed abroad by government agencies; control the sale abroad of the main Argentine farm products and import for the public only products difficult to handle commercially.

A high government official said Argentina will buy everything possible from Britain and other European countries to avoid spend-spending scarce dollars in the United States.

Rocket Goes 250 Miles High

north from Fort Bliss, Tex., into New Mexico. The target range is around 35 miles wide.

Blackmore's statement evaluated the rocket performance this way:

"This successful flight is significant in a number of ways. As far as is known, it is the world's first successful multistage liquid-fueled rocket.

"It emphasizes the fact that we have gone far ahead in the development of high altitude rockets. Actually, it is an indication of the distance possibilities of a rocket of this type. No prediction can be made as to the possibility of hitting a target 5000 miles away, but even now we can fire at a range of hundreds of miles.

"Finally, it is considered that the success of this flight opens up new vistas for scientific research in the field of guided missiles and exploration of the unknown regions of the atmosphere."

(In Washington, Maj. Gen. Henry R. Sayler, Army Ordnance research chief, said the performance "brings nearer the day" when it may be possible for man to launch a "satellite" rocket that can circle the earth continuously.)

Pimlico Plans to Shift Racing to Laurel in 1950

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., Feb. 25.—Buck Newsom, who is hankering to get on somebody's payroll once more, is determined not to pitch for the Giants again, however. That makes it practically unanimous as the Giants are equally determined that he shall not pitch for them.

"They gave me a bad deal last season when Mel Ott let me out in late July after starting me only three times," said Newsom. "Ott may be a good manager, but the Giants didn't seem to think so. They let him out after he let me out, remember."

POVICH

Newsom is wintering in Orlando and clinging to the hope that he won't summer here, as well. Such protracted inactivity can be very dull, and besides, there's no money in it.

Any day, now, he'll take off on a tour of the major league camps in Florida to place his services at the call of any club that is interested, he says modestly, in winning the pennant. The only club that doesn't need pitching, as he sees it, is Cleveland.

THINGS ARE TOUGH all over, Newsom concedes, and he's receding a bit in his own demands. All he wants now is a job as a relief pitcher, instead of promising to win 20 games, as he did for years. He's now promising to save 20. "I can work five days a week, if necessary. There's nothing the matter with the arm," says The Arm.

He's pretty proud of his svelt 212-pound figure that he's been lugging around the Florida golf courses all winter. "Down 25 pounds since last fall, and never felt better. When I say I'll take a job relieving, it's just to get my foot in the door. I'll be starting and finishing games for the lucky club that hires me."

There were a couple of factors that caused the Giants to let him go, says Newsom. One was Ott's strange distaste for him and the other was the big salary he was commanding. "Ott was keeping me on the bench and the front office figured that the club would make out just as well if they gave Ott a $5000 pitcher to sit on the bench instead of a $20,000-a-year man."

HE CAN GO to work in the Coast League tomorrow, but he's used to making more money than Coast leaguers, he says, and that would be too much of a come-down. He's been guaranteed $15,000 for the season to barnstorm with Mickey Owen and Max Lanier, the outlawed jumpers to the Mexican league, but he's scared Commissioner Chandler might take a dim view of that alliance.

And so he's going to drop around to see the Braves, Cardinals and Phillies and Dodgers, the National League clubs that are training in Florida, and if he misses connections among them, well, he'll offer himself to the A's, Yankees, Tigers and Nats.

In fact, he'd even accept that vacant third-base coaching job with the Washington club if the price was right. It would be a fifth term with the Nats, but that would not be too surprising. After all, Newsom is the only player in history who ever wore the uniforms of all three New York teams.

IT'S A RECURRENT gripe that he voices against the Giants, though. "I pitched the opening game in Boston for the Giants last season and had 'em licked 1-0 before I left the game in the ninth with a pulled groin. Two days later I was ready to pitch again, but I didn't get to start until 15 days later. It was 22 days between my second and third starts. They did a great job of ignoring me."

The situation isn't critical with Buck yet. In the past he has always talked himself onto a big league club. The A's made him a free agent a few years ago and he sold himself to Washington. The Yankees let him out in 1947 and he talked himself onto the Giants. Not until Newsom is out of breath is it certain that he will be out of work.

And right now he has a rooting interest in the Babe Didrikson-Walter Romans golf team that is playing in the International mixed two-ball foursome in Orlando. They're hefty favorites to reach the finals, and Newsom has them in the Calcutta pool that will return him $1250 for his $240 investment if they get home. If they don't, he's going to start talking pitching, fast.

Managers Battle For Honors

8409 Already Entered in Post Benefit Bowling Tournament

The third annual Washington Post Bowling Tournament for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club not only is proving a scrap for honors among thousands of area duckpinners, but also is developing into a bitter battle for entries among the bowling alley managers.

That was pointed up yesterday when The Post, in a thorough checkup of all 27 bowling establishments discovered that a smashing total of 8409 bowlers had entered thus far and that Lou Kramer, livewire manager at Penn Recreation Center, had vowed to become the top entry producer before the competition ends next Tuesday night, March 1.

Through Thursday night Kramer, who has been hustling like mad, reported 794 participants as against an 820 total Newman had at Ice Palace. Kramer fast was closing the gap, and said he would do it by today.

Meanwhile Hi-Skor reported in with Eddie Winslow with 736, and indicated it would finish in a rush. Then came Brookland with 544; Kalorama, 500; Bethesda Bowling Center, 464; Colonial Village, 424; Greenway, 402; Lucky Strike, 400; King Pin, 384 Columbia, 360; Hyattsville, 350, and Clarendon, 311.

Biggest surprise of all was the Government Printing Office, with six alleys, reporting 222 through Thursday, and promising to hit 450 before the event ends. Ira Shantz, who manages the GPO mapleways, doesn't take no for an answer, and in many cases is getting entire leagues to participate. That spirit is typical af a number of alleys.

Penn Recreation scoring also seems to get hotter with each passing night. Fosco J. Fattorini, a mere 101 average duckpinner, rolled a 193 that not only is tops for any single game thus far in The Post event, but also is one of the best scores bowled in District competition this season. Fosco, who bowls with Forman Brothers in the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' League, had other games of 103-92 for a 388, and this plus his 81 handicap, gave him a nifty 469. He missed a single in the seventh box that spoiled his chances for a stunning 203. Jim Kline's 359-90—449 with Cooperative Budget Finance League also was made at Penn.

Late scores at Greenway, where Julie Singer, cochairman of The Post Tournament presides, include 41-236—448 by Julius Edwards in the National League, and 309-114—423 by Ernest S. Miller in the Naval Research Laboratory League.

Wilson Plays Central for Title Today

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The young, eager and relatively untested Wilson Tigers pit their two-platoon system against the deadly shooting of Jimmy Pantos today as they try to take the Interhigh basketball championship away from the Central Vikings at the Armory.

Time of the opening jump is 2:30 p. m., and a crowd of 2500 is expected.

Despite an edge in height and experience, the Vikings will be hard-put in their title defense. Wilson beat Central, 33-29, earlier this season.

Hank Bristor, in his first season as Wilson basketball coach, has divided his 10-man squad, into two units, and alternated them in wearing down their opponents.

It paid off to the tune of eight wins in nine league starts and a 32-26 win over Coolidge in the semifinals of the playoffs. Central won seven out of nine in league play and added a 40-29 semifinals victory over Eastern.

Like their coach, four of the five members of Wilson's first platoon are enjoying their first full season in interhigh competition. Guard George Pappafotis is the only senior. Lee Speros, Jim Young and Sherfy Jones the top pointmakers, played only part time last season. And Don Scott was still in junior high.

Pantos, Bill Dunker, Jack Stringer and Franny Gleason, Central regulars, are veterans of last year's championship team, and are playing their last full season. Dunker, Stringer and Gleason all stand well over 6 foot 1, and give the Vikings an advantage in height.

Wilson has the one lad who's been able to stop the scoring thrusts of Pantos in Pappafotis. And Wilson has traditionally been able to whip Central, even during the Vikings' better years.

That was in 1942

had such stars as Bart Fugler, who later starred at American U., and Freddie Vinson and Don Hillock, who made the grade at Washington and Lee.

Even last season, when Central won the championship, Wilson was the only Interhigh team to top the Vikings. The score was 30-28 in that game, and Pantos was held to two points by Pappafotis.

Only Cabinet Action Would Shift Big Game

New York, Feb. 25 (AP).—Barring interference at the Cabinet level the 1949 Army-Navy football game will be played in Philadelphia and here is why:

1. The two service schools will play only where the full student bodies can attend and the site must be close enough to West Point and Annapolis so the game will not cut into academic time.

2. The stadium must be big enough for maximum attendance by alumni and Washington officials.

3. The two schools must each clear a quarter of a million dollars from the game in order to run their athletic programs.

4. Finally, the stadium must have ample parking space and railroad sidings adjoining it. There were some 80 special trains at Philadelphia last fall.

All this boils down to Philadelphia's 104,000-capacity municipal stadium where $6 tickets (and they won't charge more) bring in enough to transport the Cadets and Midshipmen and still leave net of $500,000 to be divided 50-50.

Naval Academy authorities made a study last fall to see how much it would cost to play the famous football game in various cities. Over and above the sale of tickets, the following sums would need to be donated to meet all conditions, particularly transporting the student bodies and providing $225,000 to each school:

Cleveland, $375,000; Chicago, $555,000; New York, $300,000; New Orleans, $750,000; and Los Angeles, $1,500,000.

Apparently the uncertainty over where the 1949 game will be played all goes back to something that happened last summer.

At that time the service academies tried to get the city of Philadelphia to sign a four-year contract for the Municipal Stadium with the provision the game might be moved away for one of those four years. Philadelphia balked at this, and at present there is no contract.

Meet Chicago at Uline

Caps Can Clinch Eastern Title By Beating Stags Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Washington's tormentors from the Windy City, the Chicago Stags, sweep into Uline Arena tonight bent on wrecking the championship hopes of the Caps once again.

They did it in 1947 by smacking the Caps down in the first round of the playoffs. Last year the Chicagoans jolted the Caps out of a playoff berth. And tonight they're determined to see that the locals don't clinch the Eastern Division title, at least not at their expense.

But even if the Stags sock it to the Caps, their efforts would amount to nothing except a delaying action as far as the Eastern flag is concerned. It's Washington's. If they can't beat the Stags tonight and clinch it for themselves, they can back into the title if Indianapolis raps New York in another tussle this evening.

The Caps are 10½ games ahead of the second-place Knicks with only 10 games to play. Even if they lost all 10 remaining games, the Knicks would have to capture all 11 of their remaining contests to tie for first place. Not even Lloyds of London would quote a price on that possibility.

As nice as it would be for the Caps to clinch the title against the Stags, the job of doing it is hardly that easy.

The Stags still have an outside chance of capturing the Western Division crown themselves. They're in third place, five games out of the lead, but they're closing fast.

Max Zaslofsky, their 20-point scoring forward, returned to the line-up Wednesday after a brief absence and the Stags marked his reappearance by walloping Philadelphia and Baltimore on successive nights.

Andy Phillips and Gene Vance, the Illinois Whiz Kids, are going good again and help Zaslofsky with the offense.

And then there's Chuck Gilmer, Public enemy No. 1, as far as Bones McKinney is concerned. Gilmur is Chicago's one-man detective agency, assigned to shadow Bones, and even Bones confesses that he can't take a step without having Gilmur right on his trail, too close in fact.

Bones will sit out the start of tonight's game with Big Jack Nichols, the rookie star from Washington, on hand for the opening tapoff. Dick O'Keefe will be at the other forward.

Kleggie Hermsen is in the slot as usual and Bob Feerick and Freddie Scolari are at their old guard berths. Scolari once again will try to stop Zaslofsky, something neither he nor any other BAA player has been able to do in three years.

Teal Leads Texas Golf

Harlingen, Tex., Feb. 25 (AP).—Glenn Teal, 29-year-old professional from Jacksonville, Fla., making his third tour along the PGA golf trail but never winner of a tournament championship, today shot into the lead in the $10,000 Rio Grande Valley Open with 131 for 36 holes.

Teal, who has made only $303 this year thus far, laid down a seven-under-par 64 to pace the field at the halfway mark.

Teal finished late to wrest the lead by a stroke from Bob Hamilton, Landover, Md., and two others. Hamilton, playing pro at Prince Georges Country Club, shot a four-under-par 67.

Right with Hamilton were Al Smith of Winston-Salem, N. C., who also had a 67, and Ky Laffoo, St. Andrews, Ill., who came up with a six-under 65.

Four players were tied for fifth place. They were Otto Greiner of Baltimore, Rod Munday of York, Pa.; Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., each with 134.

Last year the tournament here was rent with dissension among the pros. Today another wrangle arose over a column written by Dick Peebles, sports editor of the San Antonio Express, in which he quoted a golfer he named as Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., as saying there was dissension among the golfers and sponsors.

No Salary Cut, But . . .

'Skins Hope Gilmer Will Get Less Dough Per Play in '49

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The best-paid professional football player of 1948—at about $2500 a play—renewed his contract with the Washington Redskins yesterday.

From the campus of the University of Alabama, where he is taking part in the Tide's spring practice, Harry Gilmer agreed to terms for this season in a telephone conversation with General Manager Dick McCann.

There was no salary cut for the Alabama All-America, McCann insisted. He refused to reveal exact terms of Gilmer's contract, estimated at $15,000 last year, but said the Redskins were "just as hot as ever" over the prospects of the passing and running star who is expected to replace Slingin' Sammy Baugh.

"Naturally, McCann said, "we hope Gilmer's per-play pay isn't nearly as high as it was in '48. He took part in onlysix plays, you know, because of that injury to his leg during fall workouts on the West Coast.

From Tuscaloosa, Gilmer gloatingly reported he could "do everything any of the other boys could do" during grid drills. He said he'd lost none of his speed, that he was able to "cut" as well as ever, and that his right foot no longer had a tendency to turn in.

This turning-in tendency was caused by removal of a tendon at the side of Gilmer's leg. It kept him on the bench all last year except for briefly in the early season Pittsburgh game in which he passed five times, completed two for 63 yards.

Whee! Lowly Lions Whip Hershey, 4-3

A hard, low shot by Bryant Hextall in the final 17 seconds last night earned the Washington Lions a 4-3 decision over the Hershey Bears in an American Hockey League match at Uline Arena.

Less than 900 saw the local pros terminate a losing streak that had extended through seven straight matches.

Hextall's desperation shot from the blue line on a pass from Pat Wilson was blocked by Goalie Red Henry but glanced off his stick into the net.

Classic Stakes Will Retain Their Identity

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Abandonment of the historic Pimlico race track after this year and the consolidation of its activities with the Laurel race course was recommended yesterday by the Maryland Racing Commission.

Plans for the move, which would bring to an end the 79-year-old track, were revealed in a letter from the commission to Gov. William Preston Lane. The turf group, in addition to approving the action requested by the Maryland Jockey Club, also proposed legislation to sanction it.

The closing of Pimlico, home of the historic Preakness, would allow the Maryland Jockey Club to concentrate on improving Laurel, which it purchased in a surprise move on March 22, 1947.

"We regret to propose abandonment of Pimlico as a racing site," Henry A Parr 3d, Jockey Club president, said last night. "However, we believe Maryland racing would benefit. Our plans call for making Laurel a super-modern racing plant comparable to any course in the East or in the country, for that matter."

Classes Stakes Keep Identity

Officials of the Jockey Club brought out that Pimlico's traditional stakes—the Preakness, Dixie, Pimlico Futurity, Pimlico Special—would keep their identity as would the separate meetings. The consolidation of the two tracks would not be a corporate one, it was brought out.

Until three years ago, the Maryland Jockey Club leased the Pimlico track where reporters of yesteryear used such expressions as "Half of Congress was on hand to see today's programme." Then the club purchased the property.

With the purchase of the 115 acres, it had been planned to erect a new racing plant. However, it was decided later that sufficient space was not available, particularly for parking facilities.

David F. Woods, publicist for the club, said last night that any sale of the Pimlico grounds would definitely carry the proviso that it shall not be used for future racing.

The 1947 Maryland legislature authorized the Jockey Club to rebuild Pimlico at a new site. The commission said new legislation is necessary now because the recommended transfer involves a consolidation.

Present high cost of construction was cited as an objection to building on another site. The club estimated such cost at a minimum of five million dollars.

"To build and maintain such a plant at that cost for 25 days of racing does not seem to be feasible as a matter of economic," said the commission which agreed with all the arguments for consolidation advanced by the club.

The advantages of transferring the Pimlico meeting to Laurel included availability of 324 acres, consequent reduction in overhead, bigger purses and development of that track.

The Racing Commission said such transfer also was advisable "in the interest of strengthening Maryland racing to meet the competition now offered by new tracks constructed in recent years in neighboring states."

The commission specifically mentioned the competition from New Jersey which Maryland tried to avoid this year by adopting a hodge-podge schedule.

"The conduct of the meetings of both the Maryland Jockey Club and the Maryland State Fair at Laurel will put both associations in a position to compete on much more favorable terms" with New Jersey, the commission stated.

Pimlico and Laurel each are allowed to run for 25 days.

Murphy TKOs Favored Pillen In 3d Round

A bruised and apparently beaten pfc. from Brockton, Mass., Welterweight Joe Murphy, came off the ropes last night to knock out favored Sergt. Leland Pillen in the brilliant feature of semifinal battling in the world-wide Army boxing tournament at Fort Myer.

With the victory, Murphy was practically assured the welterweight title in tonight's finals. His opponent will be Felix Benson, a European Command entry from Pine Bluff, Ark., unimpressive victor over the Far East Command's Willie Ellis in the semifinals.

Despite Pillen's setback, the Third Army assured itself of the team trophy as it sent four men into tonight's finals. The outfit once run by the late Gen. George Patton has amassed a total of 14 points, twice as many as boasted by the second-place First Army on a point-for-each-victory basis.

The only District of Columbia native left in action, Middleweight Lawrence Jones, was one of the Third Army's survivors. In a dull semifinal he won a split decision over Philadelphia's Austin Jones.

Before a jam-packed mob of about 6700 fans at Riding Hall, Murphy hung up his second stunning upset of the week-long meet. The conqueror of Washington's big hope, Andy Nathan, won even more impressively this time, getting credit for a TKO at 2:40 of the third round.

For two rounds it was mostly Pillen. The Golden Gloves champion, unbeaten last year, calmly went about the business of stabbing his foe into defeat. Murphy was even wobbling badly in the first round, and in the second his face was getting beetlike despite a few looping punches that caught Pillen unaware.

The third was altogether different. Murphy, knowing he needed a big margin in that round to win, went after Pillen with everything. He staggered the big paratrooper with several long lefts and finally sent him bouncing off the ropes and face downward with one of the most devastating left hooks ever landed.

Pillen was up at nine, but so shaky Referee Marty Gallagher was doubtful about letting the affair go on. He finally stepped away and Murphy moved in with two more brutal lefts. Pillen slid down the ropes in one corner and this time Referee Gallagher didn't bother to count.

Quantico Tops Norfolk Again

Quantico, Va., Feb. 25.—Quantico Marines, All-Navy champions, moved another step nearer their defense of the title by winning the Group Six and Middle Atlantic States championships from Norfolk Naval Base, 69-44, here tonight.

The victory was the second over Norfolk in as many nights. Quantico's first was by almost an identical score, 65-47.

Quantico now faces an all-star team from the First, Third and Fourth Naval Districts in a three-game play-off starting here next Tuesday. Winner of it goes to Pearl Harbor for the All-Navy tourney which starts March 20.

Cy Waldrop and Jim Patrick paced the Marines' attack.

2-Sport Hall Helps W-L Quintet Win

Charlie Hall is only a high-school sophomore, but he's giving the "old college try" for Washington-Lee of Arlington.

Last night he scored three points and set up the plays as W.-L.'s basketball team defeated Lane of Charlottesville, 43-33, at W.-L. The win put the Little Generals in the State basketball tournament next month at Norfolk.

Right after the game Charlie boarded a plane for Chapel Hill, N. C., where this morning he'll try to get points for the W.-L. track team, competing in the Southern Conference meet. Charlie's a high jumper and a good one. He's gone as high as 6 feet 1 inch.

Field of 15 May Run on Off Track

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 25 (AP).—Dinner Gong stepped into the role of favorite to win the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap tomorrow as an array of 15 thoroughbreds was named to compete in the rich race

The 4-year-old chestnut, whose fame has yet to range east past the Rockies, drew the top role mainly because a muddy track is in prospect and he whipped some of these same rivals in a mud duel just two weeks ago in the $50,000 Sand Antonio Handicap.

The prospect of off-going in the mile and one quarter attraction narrowed the size of the field and oddly enough, more or less threw the race into a wide-open affair.

Here's the lineup, in post position order:

1. Rose Beam; 2, Danad Gift; 3, Alablue; 4, Manyunk; 5, Fast and Fair; 6, On Trust; 7, Stepfather; 8, Miss Grillo; 9, Autocrat; 10, Shim Malone; 11, Dinner Gong; 12, Solidarity; 13, War Trophy; 14, Ace Admiral; 15, Vulcan's Forge.

Several owners, convinced that the weather is too uncertain to guarantee a dry track by late tomorrow, declined to plank down the $2000 required to send their colors to the post.

Dancer Fred Astaire was one, with Triplicate an absentee, and so was Norman Church with his Oration. Both had been listed as possibilities.

Queuille Says U. S. Holds West's Fate

By A. L. Bradford
Copyright by the United Press

Paris, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—The United States must never allow France and western Europe to be overrun by Russia as they were by Germany, French Premier Henri Queuille told me today in the first interview he has granted as head of the French government.

Invasion by Russia would destroy western European civilization, he declared. He said the United States is the only power capable of forestalling such a catastrophe.

"As the world knows," Queuille said, "Russia planned by political sabotage to take over the control of both France and Italy. Russia failed, but that does not mean she has dropped her plans to gain control of Europe.

"France and the rest of western Europe must be spared an invasion," he said. "If the Russians should cross the Rhine, the catastrophe would be all but complete. Communist saboteurs and fifth columnists would seize control of the mechanics of government, and the mass of the civilian populations would be immobilized by fear or self-destruction.

"Once western Europe were so occupied, America again would come to our aid and eventually we again would be liberated. But the process would be terrible. The next time you probably would be liberating a cadaver, and civilization probably would be dead.

"No, the invasion—should it, to suppose the impossible, materialize—must be stopped before it ever can get started. If, for instance, a sufficient force could be counted on to prevent the Russian army from moving beyond the Elbe, then European civilization could breathe again.

"The real frontier of western Europe which must be defended must be moved well beyond the reach of the actual frontiers because once the geographical frontiers of these countries are crossed it will be too late for America to save very much. Fifteen days even after the invasion it will be too late.

Blockade

Plan Another Airlift Year, Berlin Is Told

Berlin, Feb. 25 (AP).—The Western Allies have asked the German city government to work out plans for living under Soviet blockade for another year, a German official disclosed today.

Gustav Klingelhoefer, economics councilor in the government, told a Social Democratic Party meeting that three alternate plans have been devised. Each calls for more industrial goods and raw materials to revitalize the city's crippled industries.

An American official confirmed that the request had been submitted to the Germans.

"That doesn't mean we expect the blockade to last another year," he said. "But we always plan ahead. It would be silly not to."

Klingelhoefer said if the goals in the one-year plans were achieved, enough coal and raw materials would be brought by airlift to guarantee a 40-hour week in Berlin industry.

For the last four days British and American planes have been bringing more than 7000 tons daily to Berlin. The lift had its second highest day today, with 7639 tons.

But Berlin officials estimate it would have to do better than 8000 tons to carry out the German plans.

Court Sets March 7 for Start On Prosecution of Red Chiefs

New York, Feb. 25 (AP).—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina today set March 7 as a starting date for actual prosecution of 11 indicted United States Communist leaders.

Since the trial opened January 17, nearly all court sessions have been taken up with efforts by the defense to prove that the way Federal juries are picked here is discriminatory. The jury to try the Communist case has not yet been chosen.

Medina directed the defense to halt presentation of evidence on its case Tuesday "unless I see occasion to extend the time. I'm through being fooled in this case, and if you don't like it you can lump it."

Until the following Monday, he said, he will consider preparing an opinion on the challenge.

"The trial itself will commence a week from next Monday," he said.

He later said a possibility existed that he may change his mind as to the trial date if forthcoming evidence should warrant it.

But commenting on the defense jury challenge, he said:

"Up to this time the charge as to the challenge has been definitely disproven. I am convinced from what I have heard here that this charge is largely based on speculation, surmise and suspicion."

The defense has argued that the way juries are picked discriminates against the poor and members of minority groups, including Jews and Negroes, and in favor of the rich.

Therefore, the attorneys have contended, the indictment against their clients should be thrown out. The Communists are charged with conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the U. S. Government.

Medina said it seemed to him that the challenge to the jury-picking system was a means used by the defense to get the 90-day postponement which it sought the day the trial opened and which was denied.

Earlier, as part of his "determination" to end the jury challenge, Medina abruptly shut off a defense cross-examination of a prosecution witness, William J. Borman, deputy clerk of the U. S. Court in the New York District.

Treason Case Being Probed

The District grand jury is conducting an extensive investigation of Herbert J. Burgman, 52, former Berlin Embassy clerk, who is charged with treason.

The probe was disclosed yesterday when the Government requested preliminary hearing postponed in Burgman's case.

United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence continued the case until March 31 and refused to grant bail. It was announced the grand jury findings in the case will probably be completed before the continuance date.

Burgman is a native of Hokah, Minn. He remained in Germany after serving with the AEF in World War I. He was subsequently appointed to the embassy there and refused to return with other Americans at the beginning of the last war, Justice Department spokesmen said.

Burgman is accused of broadcasting propaganda for Radio Station DEBUNK from Germany and using the alias of Joe Scanlon.

New School Head Sought By Arlington Committee

Fletcher Kemp, 32 Years on Job, Not Expected to Be Renamed to Post

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Arlington's School Board is scouring the country for a new school superintendent.

Board Member O. Glenn Stahl, chairman of the committee studying selection of a superintendent, said yesterday that candidates have been recommended from 21 States as a result of queries sent all over the country.

The term of the present school superintendent, Fletcher Kemp, expires June 30. It is held certain the school board will not reappoint the veteran superintendent, who has held the post for 32 years.

Recommended For Post

Stahl said a total of 41 educators had been recommended to the Arlington School Board by teachers' colleges at major universities, or by national organizations interested in education.

School officials said the number had been narrowed down to "about half a dozen" by yesterday.

Kemp has had several open flareups with the present school board, the first ever elected in Arlington. The present five-member body took office in January, 1948.

Must Appoint by May 1

Virginia school boards are required to appoint a superintendent by May 1 this year for a four-year term beginning July 1. Kemp said yesterday he is not ready to announce whether he will or will not be a candidate for reappointment. His salary is $9500 annually.

Meanwhile, the Arlington Citizens Committee for School Improvement recommended that the school board be weaned financially from the Arlington County board, which now controls the school budget. Meeting at Washington-Lee High School Thursday night, the committee also indorsed a suggested $3,065,000 school budget for 1949-50 and urged selection of school board members on a nonpartisan, county-wide basis.

Court Directs Acquittal in Mann Act Case

Max Zipkin, 53, a construction man here, was acquitted by direction of the court yesterday of morals charges involving a 13-year-old girl.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut of District Court ordered the acquittal on the entire indictment. It consisted of five charges of violation of the Federal White Slave Act by taking the girl across State lines for illicit purposes and one count of having carnal relations with her in Potomac Park.

The jurist ruled that the evidence was insufficient to send the case to a jury. Zipkin was represented by Attorneys James A. O'Shea and Alfred Goldstein.

The prosecution was wrecked when the alleged victim, a brunette, plump and tall school girl, changed the story she had told police. Her family believed Zipkin's interest was "parental" only, it was said.

On the witness stand she steadfastly denied that Zipkin had ever been intimate with her.

The only concrete evidence the Government could present was records of a tourist camp near Atlantic City showing that Zipkin and a young girl spent a night together there. However, the girl testified that they slept apart on twin beds.

Judge Schweinhaut in directing the verdict said, "I must view it (this case) as a purely legal problem whether I like it or not. And I don't like it, incidentally. I'm satisfied it (the evidence) is not enough. I'm not going to pass the buck on to the Court of Appeals."

COUPLE HELD—Thomas E. Burke, 20, and his companion, Donna Jean Wycoff, 21, both of Fort Wayne, Ind., are held in bond after being arraigned on auto theft charges yesterday

'Lost' Couple Arrested in Auto Thefts

A 20-year-old youth and his young woman companion yesterday were held in bond on car-theft charges after they had been arrested by police who originally approached them thinking the couple was lost and needed aid.

Both are from Fort Wayne, Ind. The woman, Donna Jean Wyckoff, 21, was held on $1500 bond, and her companion, Thomas E. Burke, held in $2500 for a continued hearing March 3 when they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Charges of transporting a stolen vehicle in interstate commerce were lodged against them by the FBI, which is also seeking to link three additional car theft reports to the couple.

Detective Sergts. Herman Xander and James M. Powell, cruising near South Capitol and Canal sts., shortly before midnight Thursday noticed the couple's car moving slowly and uncertainly.

The detectives pulled alongside in an obliging frame of mind, which turned to suspicion when the youth was found to have no driver's license.

At police headquarters, teletype messages revealed that the couple was wanted in connection with four car thefts.

Civic Group Backs Report's Health Stand

The Federation of Civic Associations last night indorsed the portion of the report of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital in which health and sanitation facilities for Negroes were criticized.

The Negro group took this action following a report by Dr. Jesse A. Keene, chairman of the committee on public health and sanitation. A special committee appointed by Federation President Ernest F. Harper is making a study of the entire segregation report.

Mention was made by Dr. Keene of attacks made on the report by the Federation of Citizens Associations, the District Recreation Board and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Lays Attack to Intolerance

"The attack is being waged chiefly by those . . . who have become famous for fostering racial discrimination and intolerance in the Nation's Capital," he declared.

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the Recreation Board, was quoted as saying the national group did not consult him before releasing the report. Dr. Keene added, "We wish to say that the committee did not consult the Federation of Civic Associations either."

Dr. Keene also refuted the quoted stand of the executive committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations that "conditions here should not be made subject of propaganda for consumption of persons outside." He emphasized that "all citizens of the country should have and exercise . . . interest as far as the welfare of the city is concerned."

Would Fulfill Civic Duty

He continued: "The two federations occupy an influential position in the political life of the city which has no vote. It is their duty to make Washington a city of beauty and culture. On the other hand it is their privilege to let segregation, poverty, disease, ignorance and intolerance prevail . . . and let all countries look upon America with shame. The Civic Federation will always seek to exercise its duty to the community in these matters."

Dr. Keene agreed with the citizens' body that hospital facilities have not kept pace with population increases and pledged the civic group's efforts toward correction of "that evil."

Favors Sales Tax

In other business the federation overruled its executive committee's report in opposition to the sales tax, approving the tax and asking that the Federal Government's contribution to the District be increased to 40 per cent of the operating budget.

The federation also asked that one of the proposed three additional Municipal Court judges be appointed from eligible Negroes if the increase is enacted and asked that educational requirements be removed from voting eligibility under the proposed home-rule setup.

Grant Denies Reports of Ghetto Scheme

Wants Residents Given Priority in Redeveloping Areas

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, yesterday angrily denied reports that the commission was planning to move Negro residents from the midtown area to "ghettos" in outlying sections.

General Grant said he personally favored a commission stand guaranteeing residents the right and priority to acquire housing in all blighted areas scheduled for redevelopment.

The statements were made at a crowded hearing before the District Commissioners on the NCPPC plans for redeveloping the Marshall Heights section of southeast Washington under the Redevelopment Act.

To Seek General Policy

The commission has already promised that this policy will be followed in the Marshall Heights program and yesterday General Grant said he would ask the group to consider a general policy at its next meeting covering other projects to come.

A request for such a statement of policy was made by spokesmen for the Federation of Civic Associations and the Washington chapter, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as a means of dispelling suspicions that the community improvement program had ulterior motivation.

Wants Plans Published

The two groups and the local chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, also urged publication of the commission's over-all plans for redeveloping the city, so that the Marshall Heights project may be considered in relation to it.

John B. Duncan, chairman of the federation's special committee, raised the point that such a program might not be essential for Marshall Heights if adequate street paving and lighting, sewers, water and transportation service were provided by District officials.

The Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington and the Washington Board of Trade asked additional time in which to study the plan. The hearing was recessed to 10 a. m., March 25, in the District Building Board Room.

General Grant announced two smaller meetings will be held before that date to discuss plan details with interested groups.

Policeman Took $1225, Woman Says

Officer Investigating $68,000 Robbery Insists No Money Was Found at Place

Police officials are investigating a complaint that a policeman pocketed $1225 while investigating a $68,000 robbery.

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett has received a sworn complaint, forwarded by United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

Barrett has ordered Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, to investigate the charge, an assistant in Barrett's office confirmed yesterday.

Neither Barrett nor Fay would comment on the accusation.

From other sources it was learned the complainant was Roxie A. Henry, a girl friend of Stance W. James, robbery suspect.

Stance James, 30, of 1332 9th st. nw., and his brother Oliver James, 35, of 1600 A st. se., were arrested early Sunday. They have been held under $7500 bond each on charges of housebreaking and grand larceny.

They are charged with theft of a safe January 23 from 1800 New Jersey ave. nw., the home of Richard H. Beckley, 69-year-old former detective sergeant who now operates a pool room.

The statement asserts that a policeman accompanied by United States marshals took the $1225 while searching for the loot of the robbery. It says he found and pocketed a $1000 bill hidden in an overshoe; four $50 bills, two $10 bills and one $5 bill, hidden in the pocket of a fur coat.

The policeman accused in the complaint, when reached at his home yesterday, said he was unaware any such complaint had been made.

He said that he was sure no money had been found at the place he searched.

A third defendant in the safe theft surrendered this week to police. He was identified as Lewis Singleton, 910 Westminster st. nw., held under $5000 bond on housebreaking and grand larceny charges. Hearings for Singleton and the James brothers are scheduled for March 10.

District Court papers disclosed Dr. Marshall left no will that could be found. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah C. Marshall, and a son, Peter John, 9.

In addition to the $7000, which was in personalty, court papers said he held $8000 in real estate with his wife as tenants by the entireties.

Debts were listed as $2378 including funeral expenses and claims for taxes for the years 1946-1947.

Police Private Assaulted Fare, Cabbie Relates

Trial Board Continues Hearing Until Friday; Complainant Absent

A Maryland cab driver yesterday testified at a Police Trial Board that a Washington policeman blackjacked another man while they were in his cab and then advised the cab driver to forget the incident.

The testimony was given by Ralph Kline, a driver for the Branchville Cab Co. On trial was Pvt. Gregory A. O'Connor, 29, of the Thirteenth Precinct, charged with conduct unbecoming an officer, using unnecessary violence and willfully making an untruthful statement to a superior officer.

The charges arose from a complaint by Robert L. Simms, 30, of 7-S Research rd., Greenbelt, Md., that he was assaulted by O'Connor between 3 and 4 a. m. February 15 in Berwyn, Md.

A charge of assault with a dangerous weapon was dismissed against O'Connor in Hyattsville Police Court two days later, after Simms told authorities he had to return to Panama, where he is employed. Simms did not appear at the hearing yesterday.

Two of O'Connor's superior officers, Inspector Lloyd Kelly and Lieut. John O. Hite, who investigated the case, testified that O'Connor told them he had seen Simms in the tavern but had not entered a cab and knew nothing of the alleged altercation.

The case was continued until next Friday at 1 p. m.

Earlier in the day, Pvt. Harry C. Lee of the Traffic Division pleaded guilty before the board to charges of neglect of duty, willfully making an untruthful statement to a superior officer and willful disobedience of orders.

Lee admitted that he had left his beat at 7th and E sts. nw., last Saturday, had told his superior officer that he had not left and then refused to tell where he had gone.

He said yesterday that he had been up the previous night with his three sick children and that he accidentally fell asleep in a garage, where he had gone to sit down for a minute. The case was taken under advisement.

'Rest My Soul'

D. C. Rapist Goes to Chair, Song on Lips

Singing a spiritual of his own composition, John H. Hall, 34, went to his death in the electric chair at the District jail yesterday shortly after 10 a. m.

Hall, convicted of raping an 8-year-old girl in October, 1946, was the first man in more than six years to be executed in the District for the crime of rape.

"Glory be my soul at rest some day, he sang, "Lord rest my soul."

His voice cracked and he stopped singing as attendants began to strap him in the chair. Then, in a clear voice, he said goodby to the Rev. James L. Pinn, pastor of the Goodwill Baptist Church, to the Rev. Samuel Kelsey of the Temple Church of God and Christ, to Col. Curtis Reid, jail superintendent, and to Capt. Charles E. Tucker, senior officer at the jail.

As the leather mask was being raised to cover his face, he added: "Goodby, you all. God bless you. The Lord rest my soul."

The switch was pulled at 10:05 and Hall was pronounced officially dead seven minutes later by Dr. Martin Cannon, jail physician, and Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner.

Colonel Reid said Hall ordered a steak dinner Thursday night and appeared in good spirits. He said Hall promised to be brave and blamed his predicament on a bad environment.

The association will hold conference sessions at 10:15 a. m. and 2:15 p. m. today and at 9:30 a. m. and 2:15 p. m. Sunday.

Thorne Backed As Head of Home for Aged

Welfare Board Favors Alston as Training School Superintendent

The Board of Public Welfare yesterday recommended appointment of new superintendents for the District Training School at Laurel, Md., and the Home for Aged and Infirm.

Cass

The board accepted the resignation of Superintendent Otto Cass of the Home for Aged and Infirm, and recommended appointment of W. Herbert Thorne, assistant superintendent. In a letter to the board, Cass said he was resigning because of ill health.

Dr. James A. Alston, assistant superintendent of the District Training School, was nominated to become superintendent to fill the vacancy left by the death February 3 of Dr. James Lewald.

Commissioners Must Approve

The nominations will go to the Commissioners for approval.

Dr. Alston, who is 35, is a graduate of Marquette University and has been with the Welfare Department since 1946. If he is confirmed, his salary will be increased from $6114 to $8179 a year.

Thorne, who is 46, worked as a gardener at the Home for the Aged and Infirm for several months during his youth. He became senior clerk at the home in 1928 and was named assistant superintendent in 1942. If confirmed, he will receive a salary of $4902, an increase of $878 a year.

The board adopted a resolution in tribute to Dr. Lewald for "his consecration to the needs of unfortunate children", and his "complete devotion to duty." A copy was placed in the minutes and another sent to Dr. Lewald's family.

After yesterday's meeting, Director John W. Tramburg announced that installation of new water mains, to increase water pressure and fire protection at the Home for Aged and Infirm, is virtually completed. Fireproof doors have been installed, he said.

Statistical Report Accepted

The board also accepted a statistical report for January, in which public assistance cases totaled about the same as those the month before.

The director explained that public assistance loads are now reaching a point "that we considered normal during the war."

For the first time since before the war, it was explained, weekly requests for assistance of all types recently have exceeded 200 cases.

Raymond F. Clapp, principal assistant to Tramburg, said there were 220 new requests during the week beginning February 7 and 239 for the week beginning February 14.

The weekly average for 1948 was 150 requests, he said.

He attributed the increase largely to the fact that, although the Welfare Department cannot assist employable persons out of work, more and more unemployable persons who previously were aided by friends and relatives are now coming to the department for assistance.

D.C. Congress Groups Vote Sales Tax On Fuel, Utilities

Subcommittees Act After Testimony From Lighting, Coal, Oil Firm Witnesses

House and Senate subcommittees in charge of District revenue yesterday voted to apply the proposed 2 per cent sales tax to gas, electricity, coal and fuel oil.

Chairman Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) of the House subcommittee said that the subcommittee voted unanimously to treat the utilities and fuel companies alike in applying the tax to all.

The decision was made in an executive meeting of the subcommittees after hearing testimony from representatives of the four groups—Washington Gas Light Co., Potomac Electric Power Co., and the fuel oil and coal industries here.

As introduced, District sales tax bills called for taxing coal and fuel oil but for exempting gas and electric service. It was pointed out that the gas and electric services were subjected to a 4 per cent gross receipts tax. Spokesmen for the coal and fuel oil industries protested, however, that there would be discrimination if the sales tax were applied to them and not to the gas and electric services.

Representative Smith said that the subcommittees will meet again Tuesday to begin writing their final draft of sales tax legislation. The subcommittees have approved the sales tax in principle and also have approved doubling of liquor and beer taxes and liquor license fees.

Sesqui Group Asks Congress For Early Start

A request for early legislation to pave the way for celebrating Washington's 150th anniversary next year was presented to Congress yesterday by the National Capital Sesquicentenial Commission.

Carter T. Barron, vice chairman of the commission, forwarded to Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) a draft of a proposed bill to permit going ahead with the sesquicentennial plans.

"It is most essential," said Barron, "that this bill be given as early consideration as is possible, if we are to prepare an adequate sesquicentennial celebration. . . . As you may perhaps already know, the sesquicentennial plans are based on Americana and the history of free governments in America.

"Freedom will be the theme of the sesquicentennial. If these plans are carried out, the sesquicentennial will depict the power and the glory, the virtues and hopes, that are to be realized in a free democracy as contrasted with that other foreign totalitarian way of life.

"President Truman has said: 'The sesquicentennial should be a symbol of freedom-loving people everywhere.'"

The bill would authorize Federal agencies and the District to lend to the commission material and exhibits for the celebration. It would also authorize the commission to erect a building for its own use, and other buildings for the celebration. It would empower the commission to fix and collect charges for exhibits, plays and the like.

The bill would authorize later appropriation of necessary funds. No figure was set, but Barron explained that "it is our understanding that the Director of the Budget will shortly submit the necessary appropriation bill."

1500 Dine Unaware Of Blaze in Kitchen

More than 1500 guests at the Statler Hotel Thursday night calmly awaited the arrival of President Truman without knowing that at the same time three firemen were quietly extinguishing a kitchen blaze at the hotel.

This was revealed yesterday in letters of commendation sent by John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commisioners, to the firemen—members of a special fire patrol detailed to the hotel for the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

The letter to Capt. R. R. Raynes, Sergt. R. J. Jones and Pvt. D. L. Reidy stressed the fact that the men went about their task quietly and efficiently, thus avoiding a possible panic in the throng.

The fire was confined to a huge deep-fat fryer holding about 5 gallons of oil. An employe tried to remove the blazing fryer from the oven. The air made the flames leap higher. The firemen pushed it back into the oven and smothered it with water-soaked burlap.

Tennis Permits Held Up for Race Action

Issuance of tennis permits for local public courts was suspended yesterday by the Recreation Department.

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the Recreation Board, said no further permits will be given out until the board acts on an Interior Department order to open up 18 courts for interracial use.

The announcement was contained in a letter from Wender to Secretary of the Interior Julius A. Krug. Wender said that the matter will be brought before the Recreation Board at its meeting March 8.

On Wednesday Krug told the Recreation Board to redesignate as "open units" courts now listed as "white" at Anacostia, Garfield, Montrose and Rock Creek Parks and as "colored" at Francis Recreation Center.

The Recreation Board also was told to reword the listing of the courts on the permits.

Krug said the courts are located on Federal land that never has been assigned to the District and are subject to the Interior Department's nonsegregation policy.

The board further was asked to submit to the Interior Department copies of all permits it issued for activities on Federal parklands.

Mrs. Lucille F. McMillin Dies; 3d Woman to Serve on CSC

LUCILLE FOSTER McMILLIN.

Lucille Foster McMillin, former United States Civil Service Commissioner, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital following a long illness.

Mrs. McMillin, the third woman to serve on the commission, was appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933. She resigned because of her health in October, 1946.

In accepting her letter requesting resignation, President Truman said he wanted to accord "highest commendation" for her services "during a momentous period in our history."

It was during her term of office that the commission performed the task of recruiting more than three million persons to aid the Government in its civilian phase of the war program.

A strong advocate of the merit system in Federal service, Mrs. McMillan also was a woman's champion on the commission. She was the author of a booklet outlining the study of women's participation in Federal defense activities, and a book, "Women in Federal Services," a history of the women in Federal employment.

Mrs. McMillan who was past 70, was born in Shreveport, La., and educated at Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, Va. She was the widow of Benton McMillan, who served two terms as Governor of Tennessee from 1899 to 1903 and as Minister to Peru and Guatemala. While in Washington she lived at 2400 16th st. nw.

Prior to her appointment to the commission, Mrs. McMillin was twice and a delegate at large to the Democratic National Convention in 1924.

Her survivors include a son-in-law, Joseph D. Oliver, jr. of South Bend, Ind., and several nieces.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Joseph Gawler Sons funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Services and burial will be held later in the week at Nashville, Tenn.

Stomach Ache Saves Family Periled by Gas

At 4:30 a. m., the crying of Ronnie Compton, 8, sent his 17-year-old sister, Doris, to the kitchen of their home at 6805 Defense hwy. for soda. She collapsed in the kitchen but the sound of her fall roused her mother, Mrs. Robert Compton.

Mrs. Compton said she found Doris prostrate, and coal gas fumes throughout the five-room bungalow. She awakened her husband, who notified the Bladensburg Rescue Squad and police. They carried Doris to a bed near an open window and then opened all the other windows.

After an hour's work, the family was out of danger through the efforts of the rescue squad, which administered artificial respiration and oxygen to Doris and her 4-year-old sister, Joan Marie.

According to Assistant Chief Lawrence Dayton, the lives of the Comptons probably would have been forfeit had not the windows been opened when they were.

Firemen reported the furnace damper had been inadvertently closed, causing coal gas fumes to back up into the house. Mrs. Compton said one of the children had closed the damper without her knowledge.

Compton is employed as a foreman at the Hudson Supply & Equipment warehouse, 7th and T sts. ne. Other members of the family are Sharon, 3; William, 12, and Robert, jr., 14. All were recovering last night.

The agreement provides also that the new theater operating company shall get rid of more than half of the showhouses Paramount now owns, and open the way to independent competition for others.

Another provision is that the new Paramount Production Co. shall not discriminate in the licensing of its feature films to any theater on any run.

The department said the plan proposed is acceptable to the Government for the purpose of accomplishing one of the main aims of a long-pending antitrust action against major movie producers, distributors and exhibitors.

Special Session Asked to Enact Virginia Run-Off Primary

Richmond, Va., Feb. 25 (AP).—Delegate Robert Whitehead of Nelson County in a statement today suggested that the five Democratic gubernatorial candidates ask Governor Tuck to convene the General Assembly in special session to provide for a run-off primary.

Under present provisions, Whitehead said, it is "more than probable that no candidate will receive" a majority of the votes and the nominee "will not be the choice of the majority" of voters.

Whitehead recalled that Westmoreland Davis won with 44 per cent of the vote in the three-corner race of 1917. He noted that run-off primaries among the two high candidates in the initial primary are provided in many States.

The statement by Whitehead, a supporter of Francis Pickens Miller, one of the five Democratic gubernatorial candidates, said in part:

"For some reason, Virginia law has never been provided for a run-off primary, as is true of many States. In Virginia and in the South generally nomination in the Democratic primary is equivalent to election. This being true it is most important that the nominee of the party be in fact the choice of the majority of the party."

No apparent support had developed, however, on the suggestion. Governor Tuck displayed no enthusiasm for the idea.

Builder of GI House Jailed

Baltimore, Feb. 25 (AP).—A builder who sold a defective house to a war veteran was sent to jail today.

It was the first penalty meted out in a long inquiry touched off by former servicemen who complained they had been cheated on the new homes they bought.

Eighteen other firms have been convicted of violating the Baltimore building code and await sentence.

Another firm, Chinquapin, Inc., was on trial in Federal Court, charged with selling houses above ceiling prices, with failing to conform to specifications approved by Federal housing agencies, and with making false statements to the agencies.

The builder sent to jail was William B. Shoals. His attorney said Shoals lost all he had in the W. B. Shoals Building Co. Judge Herman M. Moser fined Shoals and his company the maximum of $100 apiece on each of the 80 violations. There is no hope of collecting the fine imposed on the company, but Shoals went to jail when he could not pay the $8000 levy imposed against him personally.

Sharp Division Marks Debate On Planning Functions Shift

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Mr., Feb. 25.—Sharp disagreement today marked a public hearing on four bills that would transfer functions of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to the new Montgomery County Council.

In arguments before the House ways and means committee, opponents of the bills charged that such a move against the commission, which is also responsible for planning in Prince Georges County, would destroy the Greater Washington development program.

Recommended in Survey

This was denied by supporters of the bills and Delegate John R. Reeves (R., Mont.) pointed out that such a move was recommended in the Brookings Institution survey of the Montgomery County government.

J. Bond Smith, general counsel of the commission, retorted that the late Alfred Betman, noted planning and zoning authority, had belittled the writers of the Brookings report.

Reeves contended that the bills are not political and not an effort by the all-Republican Montgomery delegation to get rid of Democratic employes of the commission. He was supported by Frederic P. Lee, president of the county council, who said the council wants "the same right that other counties of Maryland have" to operate their own planning functions and enforcement.

Mrs. Helen Sharp, legislative chairman of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters, said the Planning Commission has produced only piecemeal plans—never a master plan. She urged transfer of the functions.

Col. E. Brooke Lee, vice chairman of the Planning Commission, said that regional planning is less local and less capable of administration by the county council than the school system, welfare, health, trial magistrates or juvenile courts, all of which are excluded by State law from the operations of the council. Colonel Lee said the council has full authority to enforce zoning and building regulations and challenged the council to start rigid enforcement throughout the county "and see how the people like it."

The proponents of the bills urged that the functions be transferred so that a county-wide planning and zoning body could be organized while opponents claimed that the change would endanger the present excellent relations between Montgomery, Prince Georges and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission in Washington.

China's Need Is Urgent For Food, Fuel, Clothing

By Genevieve Reynolds

"Unlimited food, fuel, clothing and medical supplies are needed in China," Dr. Marcel Junod, United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund representative, told members of the Congressional Club yesterday when he shared speaking time with Dr. Johannes Holm, tuberculosis authority.

The two UNICEF authorities returned to the United States a few days ago to give firsthand reports on their work. Swiss-born Dr. Junod has been in China, and Norwegian-born Dr. Holm has headed the UNICEF's tuberculosis program in Europe.

Despite the obstacles of civil war, currency inflation and transportation over 100,000 children have been contacted in China, according to Dr. Junod.

For 33,000, One Doctor

"For the 450 million population in China," he explained, "there is one doctor to every 33,000 persons; one midwife to every 100,000 persons and one nurse to every 20,000 persons," adding there are 16 million babies born in China each year.

Six hundred and eighty-five feeding centers for children have been set up in seven Chinese cities to date, cited Dr. Junod. He said that Chinese are taught to train their people how to use powdered milk properly. "Also, we hope to set up institutes to teach the people elementary hygiene in order to start a campaign against tuberculosis," maintained the speaker.

Dr. Holm said that 50 million children and adolescents in war-ravaged countries of Europe will be tested for tuberculosis infection and susceptibility and that about 15 million will be vaccinated as a preventive measure.

"This international tuberculosis campaign," he explained, "will be extended to additional millions of children in Asia, North Africa, the Middle East and Latin America. And it will be the largest single mass immunization campaign ever undertaken."

Up to February 1, 1949, eight million European children and young adults had been tested for tuberculosis and more than three million vaccinated with bacillus calmette guerin, according to Dr. Holm.

Miss Katharine F. Lenroot, head of the United States Labor Department Children's Bureau, and United States delegate to UNICEF, outlined the purposes and organization of UNICEF.

Mrs. Carlos P. Romulo, wife of the Permanent Philippine Delegate to the United Nations, introduced the two guest speakers, and Mrs. Ralph Church, club president, presided.

Taking turns at the tea table were Mrs. Julius Krug, wife of the Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. Robert Kean, Mrs. George Smathers and Mrs. Roy Woodruff.

Arts Club Dinner, Reception Honors Netherlands Leader

Some 200 members of the Washington Arts Club turned out at a dinner and reception last night honoring Mme. Adrienne Boissevain, Netherlands underground heroine.

The Netherlands Ambassador and Mme. Van Kleffens were the ranking guests. Several members of the embassy staff were also present, including Counselor and Mrs. de Bruine, Counselor and Mme. Helb and Mrs. Carroll Healey. Thomas Hepner, Arts Club vice president, and Mrs. Hepner, received, along with Dr. and Mrs. Hans Kindler.

Mme. Boissevain told the story of the patchwork skirt which she originated as a symbol of women's role in world unity, following a recuperative period in a Swiss hospital after being rescued from Nazi concentration camps.

Confessing that she is an ardent feminist, the speaker declared, "We need more women in skirts and less women in pants. The skirt opens all doors. So put it on and wear it with a swish and swing."

Mme. Boissevain said that she didn't believe the world would get any better until women became "leaders instead of followers."

She went on to point out that she was impressed with the position women hold in this country. "Men listen to women here. It's reflected in every day life," she observed. "One example is the numerous gadgets invented by men to make women's life more comfortable here."

Mme. Boissevain stressed the importance of personal contact as the basis of all success. "Without the vital personal touch the U. N. and all big organizations are dead," she explained.

Democrats Entertained By President

By Norma Lanum

DEMOCRATIC jubilance, still strong after the Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner Thursday night, was very much in evidence at a party yesterday at the Statler Hotel.

The occasion was President Truman's reception for the approximatly 700 out-of-town party leaders who attended the $100-a-plate dinner the night before.

Wilson Wyatt and Mrs. Perle Mesta, who cochairmaned the annual J-J dinner, stood on either side of Mr. Truman as he shook hands from 4 to 5 p. m. in the hotel's Congressional Room. Farther down the line was Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; William M. Boyle, jr., executive vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. India Edwards, director of the Party's Women's Division. Mrs. Truman was at Blair House nursing a cold.

After the guests had been greeted, everyone moved into the Presidential Room, where cocktails and hors d'oeuvres were as plentiful as Missourians.

James M. Pendergast, nephew of Tom Pendergast, the President's first political sponsor, was there, and so were Eddie Jacobson, Mr. Truman's haberdashery partner, and his brother, J. Vivian Truman.

Another famous Kansas Citian present was the artist, Thomas Hart Benton. And then there were John and Jerome Walsh and Louis McGee.

Others glimpsed here and there include William Davis, once chairman of the War Labor Board; former Senator George L. Radcliffe of Maryland; Louis A. Johnson, former Assistant Secretary of War under President Roosevelt; Mrs. John Duff 3d, of New Bedford, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Durries Crane of New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. S Thorpe of Franklin, N. How to Clean Marks From Painted Walls

How can a plastered wall, rough-finished and water-painted, be cleaned? My chairs made a black mark on the walls.
F. B.

If the mark is not too large, you may be able to remove it with a gum eraser. Or, since most water-mixed paints are washable, you might remove the spots by washing with a mild soap and water. Do not rub hard or for a prolonged period or you will remove the paint. If this doesn't take the marks off completely, you can cover the spots, if you can match the paint. Buy a small can of it, dilute it to the consistency of heavy cream and dab it with a cloth over the soiled areas. Spread the paint out thinly toward the edges so that you do not have a spotty finished effect.

Recently, a friend of mine expressed a desire for banana cream pie and I dug out an old recipe which I hadn't used for quite a few years. The finished product looked beautiful, but the bananas had turned black and were sour! I lined the pie pan with vanilla wafers and four sliced bananas. Over this I poured the cream which is the regular custard, then the meringue. I finished the pie about noon and left it on my dinette table until dinner. After having bragged about what a delicious banana pie I could make, you can imagine how I felt! What made the bananas turn black and sour? The custard tasted grand. F. A. B.

The bananas were heated to too high a temperature. This may have taken place when the filling was poured on them if it was warmer than body temperature. Or, it may have happened if you put the warm filling onto the pie and then put it directly into the oven to brown the meringue. The best plan is to use almost cold filling and let it stand until absolutely cold before browning the meringue. This way, the heat which is needed to brown the meringue will not heat the filling enough to partially cook the bananas.

I would appreciate it if you would give me your opinion as to the kind of china and crystal to buy to use with "Fairfax" pattern in silver. M. A. L.

The elegant simplicity of the design suggests the American Regency period. With this silver, I'd suggest china with a rich conventionalized design rather than naturalistic flowers. The crystal also, should be simple in design with the design conventionalized, following the structural lines of the crystal.

Can you tell me how to clean an ostrich feather bed jacket? The dry cleaners I have called refuse to acept the responsibility. E. S. P.

About the most you can do with safety to clean your jacket is to dust it with a dry cleaning powder, allow the powder to remain on the feathers for 30 minutes, and brush or shake off. If this improves its appearance, the treatment can be repeated.

We own a double bed about 4 years old in which the springs squeak terribly. They are open springs on a four-poster bed. Would oiling help, and where should they be oiled?
A READER.

Squirt a few drops of oil from an oil can at every point where one piece of metal touches another. Push the springs up and down to work the oil into the joints. Repeat the treatment whenever the trouble reappears.

We have recently moved into a new apartment and I would very much appreciate your advice as to the best type of wax or polish to use on the wooden floors and blond mahogany furniture. I do not wish to make the wood any darker. I had thought of using self polishing liquid wax and a furniture polish. I am anxious to give our new furniture the best of care. M. G.

You will find that you can build up a good protective wax coating on your floors more quickly if you give them several thin, well-rubbed coats of paste wax rather than the self-polishing wax. The self-polishing wax is a good maintenance wax, but it should be applied over a well-worked-in wax base. If you have a good coating of wax on the floor this will absorb the dirt so that just removing the soiled wax is all that is necessary to freshen the floor. If you do not have the protective coat of wax, the soil will work into the floor and be much more difficult to remove. So, for the floor, I suggest using a good brand of paste wax, applying it thinly and allowing it to dry thoroughly. When dry, buff well, preferably with an electric buffer. It would be wise to apply several coats at one waxing session.

On the blond furniture use a creamy, emulsion-type of polish. Should the furniture become very soiled, it could be cleaned with soap and water. Apply the polish very lightly and rub well. Polish needs to be used only every month or so.

Bishop-Bracken

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Bookshelves are handy things not only for books but for room decoration and for storing away various knickknacks that one keeps around the house. Though department stores keep a good many types on hand, there's an advantage in making your own. Before you say, "That's not for me. I can't saw a board straight or hammer a nail without bending it," consider whether the following method couldn't result in bookshelves you'd like.

Have a carpenter shop finish boards wide enough and long enough for the kind of shelves that will fit your books. Then get either ordinary bricks or glass ones and use for the uprights. One can arrange all sorts of combinations with these materials. The weight of the books makes the shelves as steady as you need them to be. This idea may not be too good if you live in earthquake country, but except for that there should be no difficulty.

One particular advantage is the flexibility of the shelves. If, for instance, you decide you want lower ones extending around the room you need only to take off the upper shelves and set them up alongside of the others.

Pretty 'Louisiana Queens' To Reign at Mardi Gras

By Nicha Soure

FOR that enchantment and gayety of a Mardi Gras you need go no further than the Capital City—not when there is a Louisiana State Society in town.

The Hall of Nations in the Washington Hotel will be the scene on March 1, when the Mardi Gras "Court of Queens" will be held by the Louisiana State Society.

From an impressive group of queens the Cherry Blossom princess will be chosen who will represent Louisiana at the annual Washington festival on April 2 and 3.

Included in the group of "queens" which will be on hand with mantles and crowns are Miss Patesy Mouten, the Camellia Queen; Miss Joyce Oubre, the Sugar Cane Queen; Miss Joyce Courrege, the Yambille Queen; Miss Jocelyn Aube, the Rice Queen; Miss Betty Joe Blackwell Lyons, the Paper Queen, and Miss Paula Garrison, runnerup; Miss Lucille Savastano, the Orange Queen; Miss Mary Alice Toso, representing the International House and City of New Orleans, and Miss Katherine Briggs, the Maine Potato Queen.

The Washington Post

Miss Janice Lovre, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Harold Lovre

FROM that all-important body, the Conference of State Societies, comes the news that Carl M. Walker has been named chairman of the State society participation committee for the 1949 Cherry Blossom Festival. Mr. Walker, the South Dakotan who heads the conference group, will work with the general chairman of the Cherry Blossom Festival, C. J. Mack.

At a recent meeting of the conference, 36 States voiced their willingness to name the Florence Crittendon Home as the recipient of the proceeds from the all-States dance and variety show to be sponsored by the conference. At the March meeting of the conference a committee will be named and plans formulated for the dance and show.

It might be a little bit in the future, but the State societies are already making plans for the 1950 sesquicentennial celebration of

MISS KENTUCKY
Miss Betsy Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter

Washington. Charles Helsper of Kansas, secretary of the Conference of State Society Officers, will be the chairman of the State society committee in the 150-year fete.

AND on the "don't forget" list is the Texas reception and dance tonight.

The affair will be held in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel at 9 p. m. Attorney General Tom Clark will be on hand to introduce Miss Marian Sue Wilson who will represent "the State of beautiful women" in the Cherry Blossom Festival.

The receiving line will be headed by the Lone Star State's new junior Senator, Lyndon B. Johnson, and the two new members of the House, Representative Lloyd M. Bentsen, jr., and Representative Homer Thornberry with their wives. All other members of the Texas delegation and their wives will be present in the receiving line.

MARK Saturday, March 5, down on your calendar as the day of a really unique party.

Holding the spotlight will be—not bathing beauties or walking swordfish—but outstanding Cornhusker athletes of former years now residing in the National Capital area.

Responsible for this outstanding event, which will take place in the Burgundy Room of the Wardman Park Hotel, are the Nebraska State Society and the University of Nebraska Alumni Association.

With Radio Sports Commentator Jim Gibbons (formerly of Omaha) as master of ceremonies, the honor guests will include Senator Andrew Schoeppel, former Nebraska football star; George Sauer, also a former Nebraska football star, now head coach at the Annapolis Naval Academy; Paul Amen, member of the coaching staff at West Point Military Academy; James Harvey, Dale Drain, Chuck Gardner, Merrill Flood and Elmer Dohrmann.

Special recognition will be given to Col. Lawrence "Biff" Jones, former coach of Nebraska's Rose Bowl team, who is in Washington writing his coaching memoirs, and to R. A. Van Orsdel, former student manager of athletics at Nebraska.

REPRESENTATIVE Harold O. Lovre, the new junior Congressman from South Dakota, will be the guest speaker at the South Dakota State Society luncheon today.

The luncheon will be held in the Parrott Restaurant, 20th and R sts. nw., at 12:30 p. m., with Lieut. Col. George B. Green, president of the society, presiding.

All South Dakotans in Washington and their friends who are planning to attend are urged to get their reservations early since no tickets will be sold at the door. For reservations call Miss Carlotta Reedy, secretary-treasurer, of the society, at Adams 8700.

THOSE partying-Tar Heels are at it again! Marking the happy culmination of many happy romances begun at its dances during the past year, the North Carolina Society will be hosts at its annual cake-cutting for North Carolina newlyweds and Tar Heel young folks in the Capital this evening.

The festive affair at which all couples who have been married during 1948-49 will cut a mammoth tiered wedding cake, will take place during the intermission at the society's regular February dance in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. with McWilliam's Orchestra setting the pace.

Among those who will serve as hostesses for the younger set will be Misses Grace and Rachel Gamble, Miss Evelyn Covington, Miss Phyllis Tesh, Miss Faith Brewer, Miss Betty Thompson, Miss Sabra Bauman, Miss Anne Kirksey, Miss Madeline Pitts, Miss Virginia Perry, Miss Jane Wilson, Miss Virginia Webb, Miss Sarah Lou Peoples, Miss Kate Humphreys.

THE Georgia State Society, under the direction of its president, Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, will hold its annual students' reception and dance on Saturday, March 5, in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel at 9:30 p. m.

Honor guests at the dance will be the students from Georgia registered in the educational institutions in Washington and vicinity. Members of Congress from Georgia, their wives and officers of the society will assist Mrs. Ramspeck in receiving the guests. A highlight of the dance will be the grand march composed of the students who attend the party.

The society is inviting all Georgians and their friends in Washington to attend the dance, which will be formal. Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. H. F. Buchholz, 2721 South Arlington Ridge rd., Arlington, at Otis 8383.

THE Evergreen Ball, slated for Thursday, March 3, in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, will be the big event of the Washington State and Alaska Society for the winter season.

The congressional delegation from the home of the Boeing Stratojet will receive the guests from 9 to 9:30 p. m. and dancing will start at 9:30 p. m. Continuous music provided by a seven-piece orchestra and rhumba band will keep the ball rolling for the love-to-dance Westerners. Chit-chat tables around the ballroom will afford the nondancers a chance to renew acquaintance with old friends.

The outgoing president, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, and the newly-elected president, A. Burks Summers, extend a welcome to all Washingtonians and Alaskans to attend the gala affair. For further information call National 5946.

Foul Play Feared

Union Man Missing With $1000

Police broadcast a "missing person" lookout yesterday for Wade R. Hawes, 35, Washington Terminal Co. employe, who disappeared Thursday night while carrying $1000 in union funds.

Hawes, who also drives a cab in his spare time, left home, 1208 H st. ne., Thursday to attend a meeting of Local 364, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America (AFL), of which he is treasurer.

When he failed to return from the session, held at 921 Pennsylvania ave. se., his wife, Clara, notified police.

Lawrence Hatcher, general chairman of the local, said he believes Hawes met with foul play. He said Hawes collected the money, $400 in cash and about $600 in checks, during the day at the Washington Terminal yards and at the meeting. An audit of the missing man's books showed everything to be in order, Hatcher declared.

Mrs. Hawes said her husband always had returned home promptly. She was unable to explain his disappearance. Hawes has an 8-year-old daughter and a stepson, 14.

Approximately 80 per cent of the horse race booking business in the District is conducted by telephone, Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, said yesterday in commenting on an FCC crackdown on phone bookies.

The Government agency had requested telephone companies affiliated with the Bell system to incorporate in their tariff schedules a written exposition of their policies regarding denial of phone service for illegal uses such as gambling.

The Southwestern Bell system already has complied with the FCC request while the Chesapeake & Potomac Co. is preparing a similar statement.

Most of the race betting business comes from "curbstone brokers" who dash to a pay station after amassing four or five bets, Blick said.

In order to circumvent suspicion on the part of the telephone company, Blick said, various members of the booking headquarters subscribe to individual phones in separate units of an apartment. Then they get their own electrician to move the phones all together into one room.

The lieutenant lauded the "cooperation" received from the C. & P. Co. in stopping phone service to individuals reported engaged in gambling.

A. C. & P. spokesman said it had always been the policy of the company to deny service for illegal purposes.

Choice of North As Postmaster Is Confirmed

Roy M. North was approved by the Senate yesterday to be Washington's postmaster.

North, now in his fortieth year with the Postoffice Department, was approved for the job by unanimous Senate consent on the request of Chairman Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) of the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee.

North

The committee had approved the appointment in a morning executive session.

North has served since 1933 as deputy Third Assistant Postmaster General. He started in the postal service as a railway mail clerk in July, 1909. He was a postal inspector for 18 years before his appointment as deputy Third Assistant Postmaster General. He will be 60 on July 2.

He succeeds Vincent C. Burke as Washington postmaster. Burke was promoted last year to First Assistant Postmaster General. North was nominated to succeed him last May, but the Senate committee then did not act on the nomination. W. Gordon Bell has been serving as acting Washington postmaster.

5-Year Term Suspended in Row Death

Bennie Lee Griffin, 36, yesterday received a suspended five-year penitentiary sentence in the death of a 65-year-old man he struck during an argument about a minor traffic accident.

Griffin pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter on February 4. Arlington Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy said in court yesterday that Griffin's probation report "indicates that you need some help."

He then told the husky former auto mechanic he would be placed on five-year probation.

"Particularly, you will have to take any medical treatments he (Chief Probation Officer Charles Booth) may prescribe for you," Judge McCarthy added.

Griffin, who lives at 2120 S. 2d st., Arlington, struck Audie Carroll, 829 S. Glebe rd., Arlington, on November 5.

The two had been arguing over a fender-bumping accident involving their two cars. After Griffin struck him, Carroll fell over backward and hit his head on the paving. He died four days later in Arlington Hospital.

Symphony Fund Still 45% Short of Goal

By Paul Hume

Total contributions of more than $100,000 were reported yesterday at the final luncheon of the National Symphony Orchestra's financial campaign.

Meeting in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel, workers in the drive heard reports from chairmen of committees covering the Washington area. During the meeting a short-snorter dollar bill was auctioned off, going to Mrs. Charles Hamilton Maddox for $120. The bill carries the names of Generals Eisenhower, Bradley, Wedemeyer, Arnold, Spaatz, Vandegrift and Doolittle with Admirals King, Nimitz and Halsey.

The selling price of the bill was duplicated by an anonymous donor. Contributions to the drive total 55 per cent of the quota of $190,000. Emerson Meyers, chairman of the campaign, announced that a flying squadron would be formed to complete the work, and urged all workers to finish their assignments within the next two weeks.

Mrs. Truman was expected to lead the guests of honor at the luncheon but was prevented from attending because of a cold. Guests at the speakers' table included Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Secretary of State, Mrs. George Mesta, and others.

The Very Rev. Msgr. John J. Spence, director of education in the Archdiocese of Washington was principal speaker.

One on the Aisle—

Exceptional Pair In a Taut Story

By Richard L. Coe

SEVERAL HIGHLY ABLE performances and a tautly written script make the Metropolitan's "The Dark Past" an engrossing, suspenseful picture.

Lee J. Cobb, now stunning New Yorkers in "Death of a Salesman," and William Holden, who's maturing into an able actor, are the central figures. Their story is not new, but five writers have done the unlikely by hammering the script into a believable suspense.

Actually, "The Dark Past" is the daddy of movies that ask why criminals get that way. Its approach is through a relaxed, normal psychiatrist, but don't let that mislead you into thinking this is just one more about the mind doctors. It stems from a play, "Blind Alley," which Chester Morris and Ralph Bellamy made into a picture 10 years ago.

Cobb relates, in flashback, the case of an escaped killer who broke into Cobb's weekend home. Young and obviously shattered by his escapades, the killer herds the weekend guests into the hands of his henchmen, but, because he's baffled by the doctor's lack of fear, decides to keep watch over so unusual a person himself.

Cobb notes that two of the young man's fingers are paralyzed. He observes that a book he is reading on criminal insanity intrigues his rough visitor. While the young man sleeps, Cobb sees that he's plagued by disturbing dreams. With the help of the criminal's moll, Cobb uncovers the reasons for that dream, reasons stretching back to the killer's unhappy childhood and a father on whom he sicked the police.

Precisely how sound this character study is psychologically I do not know, but it unwinds reasonably enough and certainly the inevitable conclusion that it is up to society to cure rather than punish juvenile troubles is sound.

At all events, the performances are thoroughly engrossing. Cobb's doctor-professor is always an interesting man, logical, cool, civilized, unmarred by any touch of flossy superiority.

Holden, barring few scattered scenes, is exceptional as the killer. With time out for the Army, it's been 10 years since Holden won the coveted "Golden Boy" role, and he's now reached the point where he doesn't have to rely on attractive looks. The use of his hands is especially notable and it's good to see him rise to the part.

Director Rudolph Mate and his film editor have done a neat job of putting the picture together. Of the supporting cast, Nina Foch has the most to do as the killer's girl friend and the others are neatly restrained. There are a few touches of humor and, all told, Columbia has done surprisingly well by a reasonably familiar tale.

"THE DARK PAST," a Columbia Picture produced by Buddy Adler, directed by Rudolph Mate, adaptation by Malvin Wald and Oscar Saul from a screen play by Philip MacDonald, Michael Blankfort and Albert Duffy based on the play, "Blind Alley," by James Warwick. At the Metropolitan.

Public May Get Bikini Report Soon

The official report of what happened at Bikini when the Army exploded two experimental atom bombs will be made public soon, W. T. Holliday, president of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, predicted last night.

Holliday was leader of a self-appointed committee of six that yesterday urged Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal to make the report public. Unable to see Forrestal personally, the six visited for an hour with Dr. Karl O. Compton, chairman of the National Military Establishment's Research and Development Board. Compton was head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Evaluation Board that drew up the Bikini report.

The report has been approved for release by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the committee reported, and is now on President Truman's desk.

The committee included Dr. Harold C. Urey, Nobel Prize chemist; Dr. Harrison Brown, physicist of the University of Chicago's Institute for Nuclear Studies; Dr. David Bradley, University of California, author of the book "No Place to Hide," based on his experiences as radiological monitor at Bikini; William S. Newell, president of the Bath Iron Works of Bath, Me., and Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.).

"The security of the United States resides in the intelligence and understanding of the people," Dr. Urey said in explaining the mission. "It is important that the people be intelligently informed on such matters. In a democracy there is much more danger of erring on the side of secrecy than on the side of frankness and information."

Brotherhood Key

Patriotism Can Unite All, Laws Says

Every religion is closely allied with patriotism and it is on the common ground of patriotism that men of all faiths and creeds can unite.

This, said Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, may be the formula that will promote the brotherhood of our Nation.

Speaking at a meeting last night of the Brotherhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation in observance of "Brotherhood Week," Judge Laws said a state of agitation and upheaval in our country might give comfort to those who battle us for ascendancy of the earth.

There is a need, therefore, he said, for unity in patriotism now even as there was need of unity of all faiths in the fox-holes during the last war. So long as we live in tolerance, he added, with common aims and acts, we will be able to enjoy the benefits of our great country."

Earlier in the day Secretary of Defense James Forrestal accepted the distinguished merit award presented to the Armed Forces Radio Services by the National Conference of Christians and Jews for its "outstanding contributions during the past year to mutual understanding and respect among people of diverse backgrounds."

The citation was presented to Secretary Forrestal by Justin Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, and was signed by Catholic, Protestant and Jewish cochairmen of the NCCJ.

Eisenhower's Job Described By Forrestal

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has returned to active duty to iron out differences in the "unified" Joint Chiefs of Staff and for no other purpose, Defense Secretary Forrestal made it clear yesterday.

"General Eisenhower," said Forrestal, "has no personal duty, mission or responsibility involving legislation or other activities concerning foreign military aid, the overall organization of the National Military Establishment, current budget requests or other matters now before Congress or contemplated in the current legislative program."

What the former Chief of Staff of the Army, who returned recently to temporary active duty from his job as president of Columbia University, will do was made plain by Forrestal in five paragraphs of a brief statement. He said Eisenhower's duties as president of the Joint Chiefs of Staff would be:

1. To help resolve differences of conviction among the services.

2. To advise the Secretary of Defense on organization and procedures of his office.

3. To advise the Secretary of Defense and the President on questions that are not resolved by unanimous decision of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

4. To monitor and expedite all work that properly pertains to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and keep the Secretary of Defense informed of progress.

5. To help in the preparation of basic defense plans and in preparation of budgets based on those plans.

Laborites See Battle Over Full Socialism

London, Feb. 25 (U.P.), — Key members of the Labor government meet in secret conclave this weekend on the Isle of Wight to decide whether to ask Britain to indorse a plan of all-out state socialization.

A fierce fight is expected between the champions of all-out nationalization led by Minister of Health Aneurin Bevan and the moderates including Prime Minister Attlee and his deputy premier, Herbert Morrison.

The moderates propose a go slow policy until they have digested their already vast nationalization schemes.

The "all outs" claim the Hammersmith by-election victory yesterday was an indorsement to push ahead with more state controls.

They propose the nationalization of shipbuilding, the chemical industry, insurance, sugar, and other food production and distribution industries.

Venezuela Strikes At Labor Again

Caracas, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—The military government junta today dissolved the Venezuelan Confederation of Workers, chief labor organization in the country.

Earlier, the labor ministry had dissolved the printing workers union for calling a strike that left Caracas without newspapers for two days.

The dissolution decree charged the labor organizations with engaging in "anti-Venezuelan agitation."

Individual labor unions affiliated with the affected central organizations will not be subject to dissolution, according to the decree.

From Australia

U. S. Negro Dad to Get His War Baby

GEOFFREY JOINER,

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 25 (AP)—An American Negro wrote to Australia: "Won't you please send my son to me? . . . Why should he suffer for what was wrong?"

The writer was Trennon James Joiner, Cleveland, Ohio. He sent his plea to the Dalwood Home for Children, Sydney, where his 5-year-old son Geoffrey is living.

The story got into the Sydney newspapers.

Geoffrey was about the loneliest boy in the children's home. On visiting days he got all dressed up. But no one ever called to see him.

His white Australian mother and Negro father met in Sydney when Joiner was in the United States Navy. The mother put him in the home February 26, 1947, then married. She hadn't seen him in 18 months; she had surrendered all claim to him.

When Geoffrey's birthday came along recently, so did 100 visitors to see him. There were all-day suckers and tin soldiers, a spinning top and a humming top, a teddy bear and a birthday cake, a ball and picture books—and a huge watermelon.

Geoffrey sat among the toys and candy with big wide eyes. All he could do was point and say: "That's mine, and that's mine, and that's mine, too."

Along to Geoffrey's party went Edward J. Hallstrom, wealthy Sydney businessman. He took his checkbook.

He saw Geoffrey, then the directors of the home. He handed them a check. Nothing was written where you put the amount.

Said Hallstrom: "Pay Geoffrey Joiner's transport from the door of Dalwood Home to the door of his father's home in Ohio.

"Add the costs of cables and other expenses when you fill in the amount.

"Try to arrange to get him home to his dad as soon as you can." Geoffrey will fly to America soon.

Churchill Tells Why Germans Didn't Invade

New York, Feb. 25 (AP).—Winston Churchill says in his war memoirs that Hitler called off "Operation Sea Lion," the planned invasion of Britain, two days after "one of the decisive battles of the war" which Churchill watched on September 15, 1940.

On that date, the wartime Prime Minister writes, he watched reports of an air battle in the bomb-proof operations room of No. 11 Fighter Group 50 feet underground. This group was the principal air unit involved in defending Britain.

Churchill says Air Marshal Park, the group's commander, ordered aloft squadron after squadron as German bombers and fighters streamed over the Channel. Then Park asked and received aid from another group.

Churchill relates that he became "conscious of the anxiety of the commander" and asked him "What other reserves have we?"

Park replied, "There are none."

Within the next five minutes, Churchill writes, surviving German planes were returning home, defeated. Hitler called off the cross-channel invasion two days later and never seriously planned it again, Churchill says.

According to Churchill, Reichsmarshal Goering made "a foolish mistake" which may have cost Germany the crucial air "Battle of Britain."

Churchill said Britain's air fields were suffering major damage between August 24 and September 6, 1940.

"If the enemy had persisted the whole intricate organization of fighter command might have been broken down," he says.

"It was therefore with a sense of relief that fighter command felt the German attack turn on to London on September 17.

Alcohol Price Cut To 21 Cents a Gallon

The action reduced the price per gallon from 23 to 21 cents.

Publicker said the cut meets prices "our competitors have been quoting."

Since last November when Publicker signed a contract with the Cuban government to purchase about 80 million gallons of the 1948 molasses crop, prices have fallen from 70 cents a gallon.

222 Plane Passengers Called Record by Navy

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 25 (AP).—A world's record in number of passengers carried by an airplane was claimed for the Navy flying boat Caroline Mars today. The big plane took off from here to Alameda, Calif., with 222 men aboard. They were 218 Navy men being transferred and four crew men.

Navy public information officers said the aviation year book showed the previous high was 169 persons, carried by a 12-engine German Dornier plane in a flight over Lake Constance, Switzerland, in 1929.

Propeller Decapitates Boy, 3, Drowning in Bay

San Francisco, Feb. 25 (AP).—A desperate father lifted his 3-year-old son out of San Francisco Bay barely enough to touch the hands of the child's mother on a fishing craft yesterday.

But she couldn't hold the small wet hands. The child, Martin Newell, slipped back into the bay. He was decapitated by the propeller of a Coast Guard craft coming to the rescue.

The father, Jack Newell, of nearby El Cerrito, had dived fully clothed into the bay after Martin when he slipped from the deck of the fishing boat. The Coast Guard vessel rescued Jack Newell.

'Carpet-Bagger' Bonds Given Ohio Valueless, Carolina Says

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 25 (AP).—Attorney General Harry McMullan said today 200 North Carolina $1000 bonds given an Ohio State agency "are fraudulent."

The bonds were given the Ohio State Conservation Division as an outright gift by the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

McMullan said his department has had similar trouble in the past over the same or similar bonds issued by the "illegally constituted carpet-bagger legislature of 1868."

"Private parties holding the bonds," said McMullan, "have tried to get the nation of Cuba, and the States of Oklahoma and Ohio to accept them so these States could sue the State.

"None of these States has sued when it was informed of all the facts."

The present value of the bonds would equal about one million dollars, acording to a member of the Ohio Sportsmen League. He declared that if the gift is accepted, it may lead to an Ohio suit against North Carolina for the bonds' face value with interest.

The 1868 Legislature, composed of Negroes freed by the Civil War, was illegally constituted. The State was under military jurisdiction, which authority disenfranchised white voters and consequently made the Legislature an unrepresentative group.

The bond issue was passed without being submitted to the people and the issue yielded the State "nothing whatever of value."

A constitutional amendment, passed in 1875, said in essence the State of North Carolina could not be held liable for any debt or bond issued by authority of the convention or Legislature of the period 1868 through 1870—except refunding bonds.

The Ohio Sportsmen's League pointed out that in 1906 the State of South Dakota brought suit in the Supreme Court and won against North Carolina on "practically the same bond issue."

McMullen said the bonds involved in the 1906 action were refunding bonds, issued in 1866-67, and "were totally unlike and had nothing to do with" the present case.

The North Carolina attorney general said he never has been able to find out who the present owners of the bonds are. He declared he is sending all this information voluntarily to the Ohio attorney general.

BECAUSE OF YOU

I love you not so much because . . . Of what you say or do . . . But more because I want to bring . . . Real happiness to you . . . Because I think you are so sweet . . . That you deserve the best . . . And only when your dreams come true . . . Do I fulfill my quest . . . I love you for the gentleness . . . Of every word you say . . . And for each kind and friendly deed . . . You do from day to day . . . But more than that I love you, dear . . . Because I know you are . . . More wonderfully inspiring . . . Than any silver star . . . Because you are the glory great . . . Of every rainbow new . . . And just because no other one . . . Is sweet and dear as you.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

For A Bus Driver, It's All In A Day's Work

Clarence Everley of 3404 63d pl., Cheverly, Md., didn't know, when he signed on with Capital Transit, that in addition to driving a bus he'd be serving as a mobile baby sitter.

Clarence drives a K-6 bus. When he reached the end of the line the other day, he looked back through his bus and noticed a baby on the back seat.

Somewhat taken aback by this turn of events, Clarence went back to investigate. He found an infant which appeared to be about 4 or 5 months old. Pinned to the child's clothing was a note which said:

"Please take care of him until I get back. I'll get him on your next trip."

"What did you do?" I asked Clarence.

"What could I do?" he replied. "I did what the note said.

"I took the kid up front with me, an.! minded him until the mother showed up to claim him on my next trip."

"Friend of yours?"

"Never saw her before or since."

"What do you make of it?"

OUR CARRIER TASK FORCE

Judging by my mail, one of the liveliest topics of discussion for District Liners is Washington Post carrier boys—good and bad.

Some excerpts from the mail bag will illustrate the kind of communications I get:

"We second the commendation for Carrier Robert Swiggard. Without a doubt, he's the finest carrier any newspaper could ever hope to have—a gentleman, with service to match. Could you have him talk to the carrier for our evening paper?" (John P. Cosgrove, 5009 7th pl. nw.)

"Let me add the praises of our carrier, who always puts the paper inside the storm door on bad days, and is always dependable. His name is Howes and he lives here in Kensington View." (Ruth Gibson, 11113 Valley View ave., Kensington, Md.)

"While you're handing out prizes for good carrier boys, don't overlook ours. He's Emory Givens of 64 L st. nw.—always on time, regardless of the weather." (Mrs. Gertrude C. Lehman, 65 M st. nw.)

"Sure people ought to complain when they don't get good service. I used to be a carrier for The Washington Post during some of the worst winters we ever had in these parts; and I worked for one of the toughest branch managers in the business—Joe Hamilton. You had to be right to work for Joe." (Samuel Taylor, 316 S. Patrick st., Alexandria, Va.)

"It was a lot of fun being on your program. Now I guess we'll have to read your paper. If you see The Post's circulation director, tell him to send a boy around." (Helenmarie White, 4901 Hollywood rd., Berwyn, Md.) (Note to Mrs. White: If no carrier shows up in the next few days, you'll know that our circulation director is one of the many people who prefer Lippmann to the District Line.)

"I'm one of your unfortunate subscribers, and get very poor service. Your circulation department tells me that our paper should be delivered no later than 7 a. m. But it actually arrives any time between 7:30 and 9 o'clock. My husband leaves for work at 7:45, and if the paper isn't here, he can't read the District Line." (Mrs. Rennie Quible, 6004 Benalder dr., Fairway Hills.) (Note to Mrs. Quible: Our circulation department will get precious little peace until it starts delivering your paper on time. Keep me posted.)

"When I was a kid, we were required to finish our deliveries by 6 a. m., but times have apparently changed. I've talked to your circulation department, and was promised real action. But the paper still arrives between 7:25 and 8:30." (Lieut. Col. B. J. Leon Hirshorn, 2420 N. Potomac st., Arlington Va.) (Note to Colonel Hirshorn: We seem to have gone from snafu to tarfu to fubar. Since jabfu—Joint American-British foul-up—is impossible in this matter, I'll see if we can't get back to snafu again.)

"There's seldom a damp spot on our paper, even in the worst weather. Our carrier is Robert Price of 712 Marietta pl. nw., who is always careful to leave the paper in a safe spot, and is always prompt." (Mrs. P. M. Barrows, 738 Marietta pl. nw.)

"The best boy of all is on THIS route. The paper is always at the door, neatly folded, and on time." (P. E. F., 2121 H st. nw.)

"I think we ought to observe a 'Carrier Boy Week' to remind people to pay the carriers promptly. Too many of us forget that when we don't pay the boy, we're taking away his pay." (Bertha Bradley Bell, 1727 New Jersey ave. nw.)

AS A CHASER?

A 12-year-old relative of mine got 90 on his science test the other day, instead of the 100 he had hoped for.

The trouble was that the teacher wanted to know 10 uses for water, and the boy could think of only nine. He said it was used "for cooling, heating, recreation, extinguishing fires, power, transportation, cleansing, as a habitat and solvent."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Noel Coward, who recently appeared in Paris in the French version of his own play, "Present Laughter," had a disappointing run there. When the play had to close one of his friends asked him: "Why do you suppose it didn't go well?" . . . "It must be," shrugged Coward, "because the French people don't understand French."

Sinclair Lewis, now in Italy, sailed on a boat which left from a Hudson pier. He told of Richard Harding Davis, whom he knew, and of the time Davis learned that one of their friends was leaving for Holland. "I'll go with you," said Davis . . . "But the boat sails tonight," the traveler reminded him . . . "That's all right," Davis said. "I'll pay for the passage when I get aboard" . . . "How about your passport and visas?" he was asked . . . "I can get them on board, too," Davis insisted. "Where will I meet you?" . . . "At the pier, in Hoboken," he was told . . . "I'd have to go to Hoboken?" Davis decided. "I won't sail."

At the Federal Courthouse in New York the court clerk distributes a mimeographed sheet on the assignments of the various judges—which ones would cover the admiralty section, which ones the criminal, etc., and the periods of assignment. The current sheet is complete, except for Judge Harold Medina, who is presiding at the trial of the Communist leaders. Under "Period of Assignment" there is a blank—for nobody can predict how many weeks, months or years this trial will last.

Benny Rubin, who will work for Billy Rose at the Diamond Horseshoe, once shared living quarters with Rose in the 20s, when they both had little money. Once Rubin accidentally wore one of Rose's prohibition-silk shirts, because their initials were the same, and Rose was enraged. When Rubin signed the contract to appear at the Horseshoe he studied the salary figure and sighed, "Once I took Rose's shirt; now he's even."

Andre Kostelanetz, now in Honolulu, was stopped by a traffic cop and protested: "My tempo was lento" . . . "You were driving un poco presto, maestro," said the cop . . . "Lento," Kostelanetz insisted . . . "Look, it's all right for you to drive allegro here," said the cop, "but when you get downtown the traffic's heavy, and you'll have to do a ritardando to largo."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Democrat Rights Deal Reported

By Drew Pearson

House GOP Leader Joe Martin has been tipped off that Southern and Northern Democrats have finally come to terms on civil rights. The compromise apparently was reached during backstage bargaining between leaders of the two Democratic blocs.

Martin

The former Speaker relayed his report with great interest to other GOP leaders at the Republican round table. This is a table in the House restaurant where Republicans gather for lunch and which serves as a sort of GOP command post. Martin didn't reveal his sources, but Southern Congressmen have long been close to him, and Joe's inside intelligence on Democratic goings-on has usually been devastatingly accurate.

Terms of the all-important civil rights agreement, Martin reported are as follows: Both sides agreed to an antilynch bill, antipoll tax bill, 60-cents-per-hour minimum wage, and modifications of the Taft-Hartley law.

These are crucial and important compromises on the part of conservative Southerners, but they have served notice this is the furthest they will go. They will not, for instance, accept the dynamite-laden fair employment practices bill, which will be quietly sidetracked in the House. But they will support the rest of President Truman's Fair Deal.

This backstage compromise, however, is nothing more than a quiet Yalta agreement among the leaders, Joe Martin pointed out. It can't possibly be binding on all the rank-and-file Democrats, and many Congressmen on both sides will vote the dictates of their own consciences.

Ham-and-Eggs—$25

M. Andre Picard, originator of the French Gratitude Train idea, was seated in a restaurant in Akron, Ohio, eating breakfast. He had been hospitably and graciously entertained by various cities across the country, and he suggested that it was time he paid some of the bills himself.

Picard explained that he had exchanged some francs into dollars in New York, and pulled out a hundred-dollar-bill to prove it.

Frank Douglas, French speaking secretary of A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, had been loaned to Picard to help him across the United States. He said: "We don't like visitors to pay for things in our country. Besides, that $100 bill looks like it was counterfeit."

Picard, however, insisted; finally was told he could pay for his breakfast. Subsequently, the waitress, tipped off in advance, brought Picard a check for ham and eggs—$25.

M. Picard looked at the check, but did not wince. He did ask how much American workmen made per week, then he took his check and his $100 bill to the cashier.

The cashier, also tipped off in advance, held the $100 bill up to the light and said: "I'm sorry but this bill is counterfeit. I'll have to call the police."

Remembrances

M. Picard and part of the French Gratitude Train committee sail for France today, after one of the most inspiring trips across the United States ever experienced by any foreigners. They have come to know this country even better than many Americans. And they have also come to love it. Here are some of the things they will long remember:

How the American railroads not only hauled the Gratitude Train free, but were even thoughtful enough to put French-speaking personnel on most of the trains . . . The 120-piece high school band at Elkhart, Ind.—musical instrument center of the world . . . The popularity of Gov. Paul Dever in Boston . . . The tremendous parade staged by Mayor Joe Smith in Oakland, Calif. . . . The way Mayor Al Feeney of Indianapolis matched his clothes with his complexion . . . The patience of Maryland's Gov. Preston Lane in waiting in the cold for the late arrival of the train in Baltimore.

Ecuador Radio Panic

When a furious mob in Quito, Ecuador, stormed and burned that city's largest newspaper, "El Comercio," it was the unforeseen backfiring of a plot to create trouble for President Galo Plaza, a graduate of the University of Maryland and a great friend of the United States.

Author of the "War Of The Worlds" radio script was a Chilean with many aliases who worked in Ecuador under the name of Jorge Benavides. He had staged the same "Men From Mars" program over a Santiago, Chile, radio station 16 months before causing vast alarm. The Chilean Government branded him a Communist agitator and exiled him from the country.

The owners of Radio Quito, which in turn is owned by the newspaper El Comercio, had no idea that Benavides was staging this sure-panic program. In fact no one knew it outside of a little group of actors and immediate colleagues who were sworn to secrecy.

One of the most Machiavellian stunts they pulled was to bring supposed Cabinet Ministers in the Galo Plaza Administration to the microphone and give hesitant, confused statements about the advancing hordes from Mars, all of which was aimed to destroy confidence in the Galo Plaza Administration.

By this time Quito's streets were swarming with a frightened, milling mass, some of them shouting "down with the government!" But as other radio stations began announcing that the invasion was merely a radio drama, the crowd turned its rage not against the government but against the newspaper El Comercio and Radio Quito.

Benavides is now in jail awaiting the outcome of a federal investigation into the whole tragic incident.
